Nazi Germany Comes To Greatest Crisis Of War In Last Week

Interpretation By
Kirke L. Simpson
(Wide World War Analyst)

Nazi Germany came to its greatest crisis of the war this past week along the west bank of the Dnieper river. No important bridgehead outpost beyond that stream remains firmly in German hands and even the Vitebsk highway to Poland, the Baltic states and east Prussia appears to be cracking under the weight of the Russian steam-roller attack.

Berlin admitted Russian toe-holds west of the river at unstated points, that probably means above the Russian-besieged Kiev bastion in the second north of the confluence of the Pripet and the Dnieper as well as southeastward of Kiev where a Russian breakthrough to reach the Warsaw-Bel Tserktv-Dnepropetrovsk railway would gravely jeopardize the whole Nazi right flank in Russia.

Either threat to the Dnieper line is critical. It could not be held against Russian penetration in force to the west bank of the river on either end. Yet it is on the extreme flanks, north and south, that the first evidence of a Nazi retreat from the Dnieper must come if it is actually an early prospect as all reports suggest.

South of the lower elbow of the great bend of the Dnieper a furious battle to stall off a Russian flanking movement is reported by Berlin. Moscow has not mentioned it. It is clear, however, that heavy Russian forces, hampered by mud and rains, are trying to storm in the flat triangle below the broad Dnieper estuary and possibly cut off the Germans still in the Crimea. The narrow Perekop isthmus, fitted by Nazis with a military railroad since the last Crimean campaign, is the only German escape route from that trap.

It cannot be doubted that German defense lines south of the Dnieper and to the Sea of Azov coast are in communications difficulties. The river with its marshes hamper the movement of men and supplies into the Dnieper-Azov sea triangle if the Kharkov-Crimea railroad is as close under Russian guns as indicated.

The Russian seige of Vitebsk north of the upper bend of the Dnieper still is pointing a dangerous thrust at the whole left flank of the enemy army to the Gulf of Finland coast

NAPLES JOYOUS AS ALLIES ENTER

Damage To City Less Serious Than Earlier Reports Indicated

NAPLES, Italy, Oct. 1.—(Delayed)—(AP)—The damage to Naples appears to be much less serious than earlier reports indicated, a quick survey showed today.

Areas around the docks and some particular blocks have been razed to the ground, but conversely there are large sections that escaped almost unscathed.

Italians went delirious with joy today as British and American troops appeared in the streets of Naples.

The highway passing through the suburbs was lined solidly with people. They broke into tumultous waves of cheering and yelling as the Allied troops pushed cautiously ahead, and whenever a car halted they swarmed all over us.

Flowers rained down from balconies. Wine bottles appeared on every hand. The people grabbed us almost as though they were trying to pull us from the jeeps.

American flags which must have been hidden through the period of German occupation burgeoned from scores of balconies.

I saw one red banner with the hammer and sickle.

People who lacked flags spread

TRY TO FORCE VOTE ON 'LASTING PEACE'

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2.—(AP)—Move to force a senate vote on the Fulbright "lasting peace" resolution gained strength today with an announcement by Senator McClellan, Democrat, Arkansas, that he will offer a house-approved measure as a substitute for any other proposal the foreign relations committee may submit.

McClellan told a reporter he believes the senate ought to have an opportunity to express its sentiment on the foreign policy declaration passed by the house 360 to 29 on Sept. 21.

"Of all of the resolutions introduced on the subject," McClellan declared, "I think it is the simplest, most direct and safest in its limitations. It lays the cornerstone for a definite, proper and wise foreign policy, leaving details to be worked out."

The resolution would put congress on record as favoring American participation in "appropriate international machinery" with power to preserve world peace.

There has been some reluctance manifested on prompting debate on international issues at this time, when important Russian-British-American talks are nearing.

Finschhafen Is Captured

AUSSIES SEIZE AIR, SEA BASE

Supported By Damaging Assault By American Dive Bombers

SOME JAPS GO TO HILLS, OTHERS KILLED ON FIELD

By Olin Clements

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC, Sunday, Oct. 3.—(AP)—The bitterly defended air and sea base at Finschhafen in northeast New Guinea was captured at 11 o'clock Saturday morning by Australia's famed Ninth division in a final charge that drove the Japanese defenders before them.

Supported by a damaging aerial assault by American attack and dive bombers, the Australians attacked the village from two directions and overcame opposition from the enemy's pillbox defenses.

Japanese marines who defended the base held on as long as possible and then scattered before the Australians' rifle and machine gun fire.

Some Japanese took to the hills and jungle and others fell on the field.

There was no mention of the Australian "Diggers" taking any prisoners in their final assault. No official estimate had been given of the size of the garrison defending Finschhafen.

Elements of the Australian division which took Finschhafen originally landed 12 miles east of Lae on September 4. While another force which landed only 10 days ago six miles north of Finschhafen was held on the northern outskirts of the village by fixed defenses, the Lae force fought through 48 miles of the worst jungle country in New Guinea to make the capture.

Finschhafen is the third major Japanese position to fall since September 12 when Salamaua fell to the allies. Lae was captured September 16.

The Australian Ninth division won fame for its action in El Alamein. Later it was brought from the desert in Egypt and given extensive training in jungle warfare.

Their capture of Finschhafen by breaking through fixed Japanese defenses gave the allies complete control of Huon gulf which overlooks Japanese-held New Britain only 70 miles away.

MacArthur's spokesman said 100 bodies of Japanese marines, generally considered the enemy's best troops, were found at Finschhafen when the Australians broke through.

The capture of Finschhafen in 10 days was MacArthur's shortest operation yet against a major Japanese position. Lae, 60 miles to the west, fell in 12 days.

In other campaigns, at Buna, Gona and Munda, weeks were required to rout the Japanese from their coconut-palm machine gun emplacements such as were encountered at Finschhafen, a one-time German missionary village.

The communique said:

"Our ground forces have captured Finschhafen. All organized enemy resistance has been overcome and the entire area is now in our hands.

"The final onslaught was preceded by air preparation of attack and divebombers on the enemy's positions near Kakakog following which our ground forces took them by assault.

"Finschhafen itself fell on Saturday morning to troops of the Ninth Australian division at 11 o'clock."

LINER CERAMIC IS SUNK WITH NO TRACE

CAPETOWN, Oct. 2.—(AP)—News of one of the worst ocean tragedies of the war—the sinking without a trace of the 18,700-ton British liner Ceramic with more than 500 passengers aboard last November—was officially released today by naval authorities.

The Ceramic was sunk, presumably by an enemy submarine, somewhere in the Atlantic while en route to Capetown from England. The official announcement was withheld almost a year because of uncertainty over the fate of passengers and crew.

The exact number of casualties was not known but it was reported the ship carried more than 500 persons and authorities are still without official news of any survivors.

The Germans announced last December they had sunk the Ceramic with a submarine torpedo in heavy seas and claimed to have picked up one survivor at the time. A person representing himself as the survivor later broadcast over the German radio a version of his rescue by a Nazi U-boat.

According to the German version the Ceramic sank quickly during a gale and lifeboats could not be launched.

The passenger list included many South African and Australian families which were completely wiped out.

The German announcement had said the ship was carrying troops to North Africa.

NOT BIG NEWS

MOSCOW, Oct. 2.—(AP)—The Allied occupation of Naples was announced to the Russian people in a four-line dispatch on the back pages of Moscow newspapers today.

MIGHTY SOVIET THRUST IN SOUTH UKRAINE REPORTED

Reds Smash Ahead Against Mounting German Resistance

LONDON, Sunday, Oct. 3.—(AP)—Battling mounting German resistance in White Russia, Soviet divisions smashed through roadless forests and swamps toward the upper Dnieper and Vitebsk yesterday, while 700 miles to the south the Red Army was slowly squeezing the Nazis from their last foothold in the Caucasus, Moscow said today.

German reports, meanwhile, told of a mighty Russian thrust in the south Ukraine aimed at clearing the Crimea.

The Russian midnight communique supplement, recorded by the Soviet monitor, said the Germans launched six counter-attacks in their frantic efforts to protect the approaches to Mogilev, Dnieper river town in eastern White Russia. But Soviet gains up to eleven miles were reported as the Germans fell back from position after position.

Moscow dispatches called resistance in this sector "exceptional" and reported ten German counter attacks in one area alone. The Russians were last reported some 29 miles east of the town at the Pronya river.

The Soviet forces also were beating toward Vitebsk to the north, where advances continued and 400 Germans were killed. Toward Gomel, in lower White Russia, several German counter-attacks were warded off and the Red columns advanced on the heels of the retreating Germans, Moscow said. Eight hundred Nazis were killed and war material captured.

On the extreme southern end of the battleline in Russia, in territory that offered almost the same natural obstacles of marsh and wilderness, the Russians won the fortified town of Starotitarovskaya, less than 20 miles from the western tip of the Taman peninsula and only about 30 miles from the town of Kerch in the Crimea. Five hundred Germans were killed in the battle, the communique said.

A Berlin broadcast reported fresh Russian attacks in the Kuban area "as well as enveloping attempts under-

WANT ONLY FEW FATHERS DRAFTED

Barkley Says War Department May Ease Effect On Family Life

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2.—(AP)—Senator Barkley of Kentucky, the Democratic leader, said today that "an official communication from the war department" may be forthcoming soon on pending proposals to ease the effect of the father draft on family life.

A request for a written statement of the department's position is under consideration, Barkley said, to afford the senate guidance on a series of bills designed to limit the draft to as few fathers as possible by first scraping all other sources such as groups kept out of service by present standards of literacy, physical fitness or by occupational deferments.

Barkley, one of eight senators conferring in an hours-long private session with Lieutenant Colonel Francis W. Keesling of selective service, said "the situation is still fluid" except that the Wheeler bill to defer fathers generally to January 1 can not pass —"everyone knows that."

He did say he got the impression that the army's expansion plans might be "seriously upset" by adoption of a Wheeler substitute offered by Senator Taft, Republican, Ohio, designed to call fathers under 30 ahead of those over that age.

A house military subcommittee heard testimony, meanwhile, from Draft Director Lewis B. Hershey that while he sympathizes with draft-called fathers of large families, the number of children a man has should not be the principal factor in decisions on deferment.

Other factors, he explained, include the kind of work a man is doing and his financial obligations and position. For example, he told the committee, frequently a man with three children is better able to provide for them

NEW ORLEANS MAN KILLED IN CRASH

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 2.—(AP)—Milton J. Robert, 40, was killed and Frank Hobden, 56, was seriously injured here early today when Hobden's automobile, in which they were riding, crashed into a utility pole on the Burma road.

Robert is survived by his wife, two sons, Milton, Jr., of the United States marine corps and Herbert Robert of the United States navy, and a daughter, Loretta, 7.

Both men were residents of New Orleans.

Found Dead

The body of Captain Thomas P. Fullilove (above), 36, post exchange officer at Camp Claiborne, La., was found Saturday near Goss, La., 40 miles southeast of Shreveport. Captain Fullilove had been missing from his home in Shreveport since September 19.

LOCATE BODY OF CAPT. FULLILOVE

Found Beneath Rear Of Automobile In Wooded Section

SHREVEPORT, La., Oct. 2.—(AP)—Army authorities from Barksdale field tonight were investigating the death of Captain Thomas P. Fullilove, 37, Shreveport army officer at Camp Claiborne, La., whose body was found today near Goss, La., 40 miles southeast of here.

Fullilove, member of a prominent northwest Louisiana plantation family, had been missing since September 19, when he left his home here to return to Camp Claiborne, where he was post exchange officer.

The officer's body was found beneath the rear of an automobile in a wooded section off a country road in DeSoto parish. The ignition switch was on and the gasoline tank was dry. Apparently Fullilove had been dead for a week to 10 days.

A loaded pistol was found under the car seat, and an army issue sack was near his body. The body was found by a negro farmer who notified authorities at Mansfield, La.

Dr. W. D. Hewitt, DeSoto parish coroner, said no verdict had been given in the death, but that "apparently it was not a case of murder." He said a verdict might be given tomorrow.

Fullilove's family had conducted a widespread search for him in the belief that he had lost his memory, due to a recent illness.

Survivors include his widow and three children; two sisters, Mrs. John O. Gibson, San Antonio, Tex., and Mrs. Paul L. Burton, Houston, Tex., a brother, Lieutenant Sam MacDonald Fullilove, Carlsbad, New Mexico.

THIRD WAR LOAN OVERSUBSCRIBED

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2.—(AP)—The 24-day third war loan ended tonight, with its $15,000,000,000 goal oversubscribed and Secretary Morgenthau voicing his satisfaction for a job well done.

When the treasury offices closed tonight, the drive was over the top by $1,887,000,000—and the final count is yet to come sales reported up to that time represented an increase of $867,000,000 over the previous day.

Morgenthau said reports from various states indicated there was a last-minute rush to buy more bonds. Reports will continue to come in for the next 10 days or two weeks and a final tally is expected October 18.

"The American people deserve a great deal of credit for what they have done," Morgenthau said in a statement. "We gave them a job so large that a less patriotic people would simply have given it up as impossible. We gave them this job to do at the same time they were making income tax payments of almost five billion dollars—and still they came through.

"In my estimation it proves beyond a question of doubt that the American people know what the war is about, and are really in it wholeheartedly, and are determined to do whatever they can to win it quickly and decisively."

U. S. FORTRESSES RIP EMDEN AGAIN

19 Nazi Fighters Shot Down In Attempting To Defend City

GERMANS CLAIM AMERICAN NIGHT ASSAULT IS MADE

LONDON, Sunday, Oct. 3.—(AP)—American Flying Fortresses, again escorted by long-range Thunderbolt, blasted port installations at Emden, Germany, yesterday and with their hard-hitting fighter escorts shot down 19 German fighters, a communique said early today. Two Fortresses were lost.

The Fortresses bagged 14 enemy planes and the fighters five, the bulletin said.

(The main Berlin radio station, Deutschlandsender, went off the air tonight along with a DNB news agency wireless telegraph transmitter in Berlin and the Kalundborg radio in occupied Denmark, the federal communications commission reported, indicating another Allied aerial assault against the continent.)

Marauders, escorted and covered by R. A. F., Dominion and Allied Spitfires, attacked the air field at St. Omer-Longuenesse in northern France.

These latest blows came a scant 12 hours after the Germans reported that the United States Eighth air force Fortresses had joined the R. A. F. in a big night raid on the Ruhr Friday night. The German claim was not confirmed by Eighth air force officers.

There were indications of continuing widespread attacks early Sunday against Hitler's so-called European fortress which now is being subjected to two-way aerial hammering from both British and Mediterranean bases. An air alert sounded in Bern, Switzerland, the usual sign of Allied aerial activity against Axis targets. Radio stations in Berlin, Munich, and other German-occupied cities also went off the air late last night.

Allied attackers streamed across the

WAR LOAN DRIVE HITS $4,766,270

Chairmen Express Appreciation For Work Of Groups, Individuals

Ouachita parish subscribed $4,766,270 to the Third War Loan, or 5151,270 over its quota, it was announced Saturday by C. D. Oakley, co-chairman with S. Jack Rogers of the Ouachita Parish War Finance committee.

Mr. Rogers and Mr. Oakley expressed appreciation of the efforts of those who aided in the war loan drive, and singled out several groups and individuals for especial praise.

"Again Ouachita parish has not failed the government in purchase of War Bonds," Mr. Rogers said, "thus continuing its record of never having failed to exceed its quota in a campaign to aid the war effort."

The War Finance committee thanked officials and workers of all schools, parish, city and parochial, as well as the committee which directed the campaign among the negro citizens of the community, which included Dr. J. C. Roy, Dr. Cunningham, Dr. M. C. Clanahan, H. H. Marble and E. W. Simms.

The Retail Merchants committee in charge of war bond sales, headed by Grover Holloway, and Mrs. Jewel McQuiller and her committees of Home Demonstration club and 4-H club members also were praised for the excellent work. W. R. Younger and Tom Hicks, of the West Monroe committee, and the Ouachita Parish Cattlemen's association. Ike Hamilton and Jim Stanley also were singled

THREE-GUN CO-ED HELD AS ASSASSIN

LONDON, Oct. 2.—(AP)—The Berlin radio said today that three-gun Dutch co-ed, 22-year-old Gertrude Van Lier, had been arrested by German occupation troops for the assassination on September 3 of Colonel Gerrit Jan Kerlen, police president of Utrecht.

The broadcast said the student had admitted participation in another assassination and that she was carrying three pistols at the time of her arrest.

Kerlen was described by Aneta, official Netherlands news agency, as a retired officer of the Netherlands Indies army who became a Nazi collaborationist after the German invasion. The agency said the Nazis had offered a reward of 10,000 guilders, ($5,400) for the girl's arrest.

CRITICAL TIRE SHORTAGE SEEN

Rubber Executives Say Drastic Conservation Is Necessary

AKRON, O., Oct. 2.—(AP)—A possible breakdown in rubber-borne transportation unless immediate and drastic tire conservation measures are taken was seen today by executives of five major Akron rubber companies.

A survey of the industry's leaders brought into sharp focus steps taken by the government to prevent exhaustion of the present small stock of new truck and passenger car tires before the industry can get into volume production of synthetic tires.

Rubber executives viewed the new reduction in value of B and C gasoline rations coupons from three to two gallons as a major help in tire conservation. Other steps in this direction were the 20 per cent cut in the October quotas of passenger car tires and the boosting to 601 miles the essential monthly driving a car owner must do before he is eligible for a new passenger car tire ration certificate.

The president of one rubber company declared the nation's stock of tires now is less than 3,000,000, adding the supply problem is mainly one of manpower.

"There is plenty of synthetic rubber, but not enough workers to convert it into tires," said President William O'Neil of the General Tire and Rubber company.

"This industry normally operates with 16,000,000 tires in stock. It is now reduced to less than 3,000,000 tires. Obviously this means there will not be enough tires until the manpower problem is solved. We have lost many good workers. Add to this the fact that the men left behind are working slower than the men who went into service, and you can understand the critical position we are in."

POSTPONE TRIAL OF KIMMEL AND SHORT

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2.—(AP)—The war department announced today that the secretary of war and the secretary of navy "have concluded that it is undesirable in the public interest to proceed at this time with the trial of Rear Admiral Husband E. Kimmel and Major General Walter C. Short," the officers in charge in Hawaii when the Japanese struck Pearl Harbor.

The announcement said that it was decided to "postpone proceedings against those officers until such time in the near future as may be decided upon as being appropriate."

Both Kimmel and short have voluntarily agreed to waive the statute of limitations for the duration and six months thereafter, the announcement said. The postponement, the announcement said, "will not affect the existing rights of the government nor those of the officers concerned."

A presidential commission reported in January, 1942, that dereliction of duty and errors of judgment on the part of the army and navy commanders at Pearl Harbor were largely responsible for the success of the sneak attack on the great American naval base near Honolulu.

Short and Kimmel were relieved of their commands ten days after the attack and later were ordered to stand trial by courts-martial.

Both made retirement applications, which were accepted. Their retirement pay is $6,000 a year, but this would be cut off in event of their conviction.

SAVES LIFE OF DROWNING TOT

Child Found Unconscious And Apparently Lifeless In Tub

Two-year-old Carylon Crowson barely escaped death by drowning yesterday when she was revived by a farmer and Monroe firemen after she had been found unconscious and apparently lifeless in a tub of water.

The child, a patient at St. Francis sanitarium last night and apparently well on her way to recovery, is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. G. Crowson, farmers on the W. W. McDonald farm four and a half miles south of here.

Kaye Okuma, a neighboring farmer, was given full credit for saving the child's life, according to members of the family and Monroe firemen who rushed to the scene with the American Legion emergency truck.

Okuma administered artificial respiration and the child was partially revived when Captain H. L. Hales and Fireman M. M. Smith and C. W. Flacey arrived with the legion truck. Firemen worked 30 minutes longer over the child with the truck's emergency apparatus until the child was breathing steadily. She was then rushed to the hospital here.

The child's father, in Monroe at the time the child was found in the tub, arrived home almost at the same time the firemen arrived. He said Okuma apparently "was the only person who knew what to do" until firemen arrived. Captain Hales said Okuma's work had saved the girl's life. If no work had been done toward reviving the child before firemen arrived the chances of saving her life would have been greatly reduced, Captain Hales said.

The child was playing about the farm with some other small children. A search was started for her when she was missed after a time, and she was found lying in the tub which was inside the garden fence. The garden gate had been left open, it was said, and the child had wandered into the garden and accidentally toppled into the tub of water. She was found in the water about 3:30 p.m. It was not known how long she was in the water.

CAPTAIN FLEMING IS NAMED CHIEF PILOT

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 2.—(AP)—Captain H. B. Fleming of Coushatta, La., has been appointed chief pilot of Pan-American airways' recently established airway across the Gulf of Mexico from New Orleans to Guatemala and Panama.

He will succeed Captain J. C. Britton, who made the initial flight last June over the 2,000-mile route, Pan-American announced today.

Captain Fleming has flown across the ocean 50 times during the past year. Employed by Pan-American in 1936, he has piloted clippers across Mexico, central and northern South America—and since 1941 has been flying the New York-Europe and Africa routes.

His new headquarters will be at New Orleans.

Captain Britton will complete his tour of duty at New Orleans this week and will be assigned to trans-ocean service of Pan-American.

CLARK'S FORCES HIT FURIOUSLY

No Lull In Fierce Fighting Is Expected To Come Soon

MASTERLY RETREAT SEEN BY WILY GERMAN GENERAL

By Noland Norgaard

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, Oct. 2.—(AP)—Brisk fighting raged north of Naples and north of Avellino in Italy today as American and British troops pursued the fiercely-resisting rearguard of that master of reteat, Marshal Erwin Rommel.

Enemy troops and armor were battling vigorously and giving ground only foot by foot in the face of the Allies' dogged pursuit north of Naples the Germans obviously were determined to hold back the hard-hitting, high-speed columns of Lieutenant General Mark W. Clark until a new defense line could be prepared somewhere to the north.

The same brand of resistance was being encountered by American troops advancing through the mountains north and northeast of Avellino. An Allied military spokesman said there was slight chance that many prisoners would be taken as the Nazis backed up the Italian peninsula.

"It should be a masterly retreat," he conceded. "They have got Rommel in Italy, and he is a master at rearguard fighting. He ought to be. He's done a damn sight more of it than anyone else."

At the same time, there was every indication that the Allies could continue to hammer hard at the foe, and the belief here was that there would be no lull in the fighting soon.

Hitting furiously to block the Germans' retreat from the Naples area, Allied bombers last night attacked pontoon bridges at Grazzanise, 20 miles north of Naples, where there is a crossing of the Volturno river. Formia, a coastal city along the ancient Appian way to Rome, also was heavily attacked.

On the Adriatic coast General Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's British Eighth army still was meeting only light opposition and had surged 30

HEAVY KILL MADE BY SOUTH DAKOTA

'Battleship' Sinks Three Jap Cruisers, Downs 32 Planes

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2.—(AP)—The famous "battleship" which shot down 32 planes in one engagement and then sank three Japanese cruisers, was identified today by the navy as the U. S. S. South Dakota.

Under command of Captain Thomas L. Gatch—now Rear Admiral Gatch, judge advocate general of the navy—the South Dakota bagged the three cruisers the night of November 14 off the point of Savo island in the Solomons.

She was prowling in search of enemy shipping when the thruee cruisers came into sight. The first salvo from the South Dakota set ablaze one of the cruisers. Before the other enemy warships could get within range, the South Dakota had sunk them all. Earlier, on October 26 in the battle of Santa Cruz, she had slugged her way through a heavy air attack, shooting down 32 planes.

The navy said the battleship's identity had been kept a secret for nearly a year because she was the first ship of a new class bearing new

WOOD CONTRACTOR FATALLY INJURED

BERNICE, La., Oct. 2.—(Special)—J. J. Hollis, 42, well known pulp wood contractor of Union parish, was fatally injured this morning when he was crushed by a log on one of his trucks near Lisbon.

The accident occurred about 10 a. m. and Hollis was rushed to the Ruston-Lincoln hospital at Ruston, where he died at 4 p. m.

Inability to secure labor had led Mr. Hollis to decide to sell his trucks and quit his business. He had gone out to finish a small amount of timber before ending his hauling operations when the accident occurred. Details of how he became crushed were not immediately reported.

Mr. Hollis is survived by his wife, Mrs. Blanche Gresham Hollis; three daughters, Mrs. Stinson Heard, Martha Blanche Hollis and Helen Ann Hollis, all of Bernice, and a son, J. J. Hollis, Jr., in the army school at Oberline, Ohio. Funeral arrangements had not been completed Saturday.

Mr. Hollis had also been active in baseball circles of this area.

LONDON, Oct. 3.—(Sunday)—(AP)—An air raid alert was sounded in London early today followed almost immediately by heavy gunfire. The British capital's alert was September 15 when German planes dropped several bombs on outlying districts causing a few casualties.

CIVIL SERVICE BANS DONATIONS

State Organization Prohibits Giving To Political Campaign

BATON ROUGE, La., Oct. 2.—(AP)—State political organization treasurers needn't figure on raising a penny in campaign contributions from 16,500 classified state employes if that group follows instructions in a handbook just issued by the department of state civil service.

Under the heading of "political activity," the department answers a flat "no" to the question "May a civil service employe make a voluntary contribution to a political organization or solicit from others such a contribution?"

This, the department adds, is "specifically prohibited by the civil service law."

Continuing in question-answer fashion, the handbook discloses that some employes may campaign otherwise and some may not, any may run for office, but none may keep a state job if elected.

The original civil service law, the department reported, contained a provision that no classified employe could be a candidate for any elective office, but the statute was amended in 1942 to permit such candidacy.

But, it adds, any civil service employe elected to any state, parish or city office may not hold a position in the classified service for the term for which he is elected.

In general, the department says, civil service employes may make political speeches or public statements or take part in managing a political campaign—"but this activity must not interfere with his work for the state."

Employes in the health, welfare and unemployment compensation departments are not allowed this right however, being prohibited by the federal Hatch act from "any kind of political activity whatsoever except private expressions of political opinions and the casting of their votes."

Two other "cans" and two "cannots" are discussed:

Civil service employes are specifically permitted by the state primary law to serve as election commissioners, but are prohibited by the same law from serving as watchers or special deputies at any polling place where there are 100 or more registered voters.

Under an opinion from the attorney general's office, employes may use a personal car to take people to and from a polling place—as long as the employe is on leave and not doing this on the state's time.

Another flat "no" answers the question of whether an employe may engage in political activity during office hours.

"The employe is paid by the state for the performance of certain definite duties which do not include political activity," the handbook reads, and adds there is no objection to an employe engaging in political activity while he is on properly authorized annual leave."

Otherwise, major Washington developments of the day included:

The war and navy departments announced both Rear Admiral Husband E. Kimmel and Major General Walter C. Short, navy and army commanders in Hawaii when the Japanese struck, have waived the statute of limitations as to court martial proceedings against them. The trial, it was announced, has been postponed until an "appropriate" time—presumably after the war.

The War Food administration set 1944 planting goals calling for use of every crop acre and farming facility to raise the food necessary to meet military and relief demands.

With hearings to begin Monday on a new tax bill, the C. I. O. and railroad trainmen demanded that it include a $25,000 ceiling, after taxes, on individual incomes. Some legislators talked of sharply trimming the administration's proposed tax boosts.

DEATHS

MRS. ANNIE DEMPSEY

WINNSBORO, La., Oct. 2.—(Special) Mrs. Annie Dempsey, 89, died early Saturday at the home of her daughter-in-law, Mrs. J. A. Dempsey. She leaves five grandchildren and 10 great grandchildren.

The funeral and interment, directed by the Mulhearn Funeral home of Winnsboro, will take place Sunday afternoon at Louisville, Miss.

PHILIP INZINA

Last rites for Philip Inzina, a retired Monroe grocer who died Thursday at the age of 102 years, were held yesterday morning at 9 o'clock at St. Matthew's Catholic church with Monsignor N. F. armament and with greatly increased fire power. To have identified her as the South Dakota, the navy said, would have given the enemy valuable information on the new class.

The South Dakota sister ships in the hard slugging class are the U. S. S. Massachusetts, U. S. S. Indiana, and U. S. S. Alabama.

Gatch told of the aerial assault and the subsequent surface battle in a formal report in which he declared "I was more afraid of ramming the carrier we were protecting than of the attacking planes."

Telling of one of the aerial attacks, he said only a single torpedo plane of a group of about 40 Japanese bombers did not fall or turn back from the South Dakota's fire.

"It came at the stern of the ship," he reported. "It appeared that millions of tracer shells went right past that plane without hitting it but some did strike it and at the right time. They struck just before the pilot released his torpedo."

out for expressions of appreciation, as were Joe Trammell and Tom Davenport of the Civilian Defense council, the newspapers of the Twin Cities, the radio station, George Lofton, who handled publicity, the banks, post-office and all other issuing agencies, Ron Campbell and Joe Washburn. Residents of Sterlington, Calhoun and Fairbanks and employes of the Dixie Ordnance works were also praised for their efforts toward the success of the campaign.

"The campaign was a huge success and all of Ouachita parish is to be congratulated," Mr. Rogers said. "To every investor and to every member of every committee who worked untiringly to assure the success of the drive, and to officials of the cities of Monroe and West Monroe, as well as other employes of the Twin Cities, we express our heartfelt appreciation. It is impossible to list every person who aided in this great undertaking, but the War Finance committee takes this means of thanking you all."

LEGION WILL PLAN MULLIGAN SUPPER

Final arrangements for the mulligan supper held annually by the L. B. Faulk post No. 13, American Legion, will be made tomorrow night at 8 o'clock at the monthly meeting of the post's membership at the Legion memorial home here, it was announced last night.

U. S. FORTRESSES

channel yesterday to keep up the crescendo of the assault.

The Emden raid was the third big blow on Axis targets in two days.

United States Eighth air force officers maintained silence on the German radio report that American bombers had joined the R. A. F. in the assault last night on the Ruhr industrial city of Hagen, which is both a rail center and an important industrial target.

The German announcement recalled, however, that as far back as March Major General Ira C. Eaker, Eighth air force commander, said Flying Fortresses would bomb at night—a field of operation hitherto carried out exclusively by the R. A. F.

Whether or not it has joined in the night bombing, the Eighth air force has quadrupled, at least, the power of its heavy raids on Germany and France since a year ago. It now is sending out an average of over 200 bombers on each raid, and it is likely this average was much exceeded on a number of recent raids. During September the American planes dropped more than 8,000 tons of bombs.

The attack against Emden today was the second one for that city this week. Emden was bombed twice on Monday, in daylight by the Fortresses and at night by the R. A. F.

Since the destruction of Hamburg, Emden has fallen heir to a big block of German shipping. It is the terminus of the Dortmund-Ems canal used to carry Scandinavian iron ore and other vital raw materials to the Ruhr.

The two-way blows against the Reich began from North Africa yesterday, American Flying Fortresses, making their first raid on Germany from the Mediterranean theater and their longest operational flight from northwest African bases, pounded Munich in a round-trip flight of approximately 1,800 miles. Liberators teamed with them to blast the Messerschmitt air frames factory at Wiener Neustadt, 25 miles southeast of Vienna.

BIG REDUCTION IN TIRE QUOTA ISSUED

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 2.—(AP)—The Office of Price Administration today anonunced a reduction by almost 30 per cent in the quota of new passenger tires in the New Orleans district.

The September total of 14,947 grade I tires for the district has been cut to 10,782 for October.

Beginning October 1 only those car owners who need to drive 601 miles, or more, a month, may qualify for new tires, the OPA said.

west of Leningrad. By latest available reports from that only dormant sector, German forces still are deeply deployed east of the Pskov gateway to the southern end of Lake Ilmen and on the upper Volkov. They appear to be relying on the marshes between the Lovat and the Uolista rivers southwest of Lake Ilmen to protect them from encirclement by the Russian army which months ago took Velikie Luki.

The Russian force must be merely biding its time. It may be waiting for the freeze-up in northern Russia or the fall of Vitebsk before striking out northwestward toward the critical Pskov gateway to Leningrad, less than 150 miles away. The first winter campaigning in Russia at which Russian forces heretofore have shown themselves the master of their foes in endurance, mobility and daring, is apt to come this year in that sector.

It seems clear that the first symptoms of a disastrous Nazi retreat from the Dnieper, even though the Russian penetration might occur in the center, are to be expected on the extreme north and southern flanks of the present line. Both hold possibilities of entrapment of large German forces.

By these and other signs, it seems probable that the next week or two along the Dnieper will see the crisis for the enemy.

taken from the sea" which it said were defeated.

Only the Germans mentioned what appeared to be one of the most powerful Soviet drives on the Russian front in several weeks—that in the south Ukraine. The Germans claimed on Friday they had defeated a five-day push by 15 Soviet divisions on a 70-mile front around Zaporozhe, where the Dnieper river bends far to the east in the southern Ukraine.

Later Berlin broadcasts admitted the Russians took to the attack again early Saturday morning with three armies, or about 12 divisions, plus special troops, tank formations and motorized units.

"A fresh and particularly massive enemy assault was opened Saturday morning according to the latest dispatches from the front," said the broadcast recorded by the Associated Press. "The new attack was prepared by artillery fire on German positions and was heralded by a massed offensive of battle planes and bombers. In the hope of having thus softened up German lines, the enemy then proceeded to put his tanks and motorized special formations into action."

LIQUIDATION BOARD EXPECTED TO MEE[illegible]

BATON ROUGE, La., Oct. 2.—(AP)—The state board of liquidation probably will hold its scheduled meeting Tuesday afternoon despite a court order restraining it from transferring surplus state funds, a spokesman for the governor, board chairman, said today.

Amended purpose of the meeting, he said, will be to discuss effects of the order, granted in 19th district court Friday to a director of the bureau of governmental research and set for hearing October 11.

Brief comment on the temporary order was made today by State Schools Superintendent John E. Coxe, who said that if courts held that the board could not transfer a proposed $2,100,000 to the department of education it would be a "severe disappointment to schools and teachers."

Judge Charles A. Holcomb issued the order on a motion by M. A. Carr, a director of the New Orleans Research bureau, who said it stemmed from the announced plans of the liquidation board to meet October [illegible] to consider transfer of some $2,000,000 from the state surplus to the education department.

Attorney General Eugene Stanley and State Treasurer A. P. Tugwell, in statements issued shortly after the court action predicted that the supreme court would recognize the [illegible] year-old liquidation board's actions as legal.

RECORD IN FOOD CROPS IS SOUGHT

Reduction In Some Forms Of Livestock Is Called For

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2.—(AP)—With military and foreign relief demands for food steadily increasing, the War Food administration has set 1944 farm production goals which call for use of every crop acre and every farming facility in the country.

Given average growing conditions, the proposed plantings would provide the nation with a harvest considerably greater than the record output of food expected this year.

The goals will be laid before congress on Wednesday, and before state agricultural war boards at meetings to be held this month. The first state meetings will open Monday at Denver, Colo., Manhattan, Kans., Baton Rouge, La., Jackson, Miss., Columbus, O., and Madison, Wis.

In addition to increased over-all volume, the program proposes significant changes in the nation's agricultural pattern. Some of the direct food consumption crops—such as dry beans peas, soybeans, peanuts, wheat, vegetables and potatoes—would get first claim on the use of crop land.

Feed crops, particularly lower-yielding types, would give way to food crops and higher yielding feed crops, because feed supplies are expected to be 18 per cent smaller per animal unit. The goals call for a reduction in some types of livestock production, particularly hogs, chickens, and turkeys.

The goals suggest the following percentage increases over this year's expected production or acreage: Milk 3, eggs 1, beef cattle and calves marketed for slaughter 19, hay 3, corn 3, wheat 26, soybeans 22, peanuts 31, sugar beets 42, potatoes 2, sweet potatoes 8, fresh vegetables 10, vegetables for processing 6, dry beans and peas 18.

Percentage decreases suggested were: Farm chickens 3, commercial broilers 20, turkeys 4, hogs 17, sheep and lambs on farms 4, barley 2, sorghum 5, oats 9, rye 3, and flaxseed 1. No change was suggested for cotton and rice. A 10 per cent increase was recommended for tobacco to meet a sharp increase in domestic and foreign demand.

The proposed reduction in some feed crops and livestock types would not show up in civilian meat supplies until late 1944.

The goals would utilize 380,000,000 acres of cropland, by far the largest ever used.

The 17 per cent reduction in hog numbers, proposed because of the short feed outlook, is perhaps the most significant suggested change in the farming pattern. The goal for milk is 120,000,000,000 pounds, or about 5,000,000,000 pounds more than is expected this year.

The national goals for the various commodities have been apportioned among the states on the basis of their productive possibilities. The state goals will be divided among farmers.

The WFA will announce later price supports—that is, minimum prices on which farmers may count—for the various commodities. Somewhat higher prices are expected for some crops, particularly soybeans, peanuts, sugar beets, some vegetables, corn, and wheat.

In asking the cut in hog numbers, the WFA estimates that there will be enough corn and other feeds to raise 105,000,000 head to an average market weight of 230 pounds. Production this year reached the record of 126,000,000 head, many of which have been and are being marketed at much heavier weights.

The WFA suggests that the greatest reduction in hogs be made in wheat-growing states. In the corn-belt, hog production would be maintained at relatively high levels.

The tentative national goals and this year's indicated or expected production or acreage include:

Milk—122,000,000,000 and 118,300,000,000 pounds.

Eggs—4,345,500,000 and 4,519,750,000 dozen.

Chickens to be produced on farms—[illegible],000,000 and 925,650,000.

Commercial broilers—200,000,000 and [illegible],575,000.

Turkeys—32,000,000 and 33,176,000.

Hogs—105,000,000 and 126,000,000 head.

Cattle and calves to be marketed for slaughter—33,700,000 and 28,300,000 head.

Corn—100,000,000 and 96,818,000 acres.

Sorghums—16,400,000 and 17,220,000 acres.

Tame hay—62,025,000 and 60,490,000 acres.

Rice—1,535,000 and 1,538,000 acres.

Soybeans—14,000,000 and 11,480,000 acres.

Peanuts—5,500,000 and [illegible],191,000 acres.

Cotton—22,000,000 and 21,995,000 acres.

Potatoes—3,500,000 and 3,444,000 acres.

Sweet potatoes—1,000,000 and 923,000 acres.

Fresh vegetables—1,684,000 and 1,524,000 acres.

Dry edible beans—3,300,000 and 2,[illegible],000 acres.

Dry peas—875,000 and 741,000 acres.

GOT IT SECOND TIME AROUND

Billy Kelly, left, of 211 Jonesboro road, West Monroe, is shown here receiving the wings of a member of the air corps enlisted reserve from Major Charles R. Bowman, executive officer of Selman field. Young Kelly, the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Kelly, won these wings by passing the mental and physical requirements to become an aviation cadet at Selman field. What distinguished his achievement is that, although he failed the mental test on the first try, he returned four weeks later and passed it. A 1942 graduate of Ouachita Parish High school, he was 18 last September 22. Within the next six months he will be called to active duty, to enter pre-aviation cadet college training and pursue the path toward the silver wings of a pilot, bombardier, or navigator.

REV. GROSSE IS TO LEAVE CITY

Trinity Lutheran Pastor To Direct Kansas City Center

Rev. Vernon C. Grosse, pastor of Trinity Lutheran church, is to leave in a few days' time for Kansas City, Mo., where he will become director of the Lutheran center, which is similar to USO, and which while non-denominational, is open and operated by the Lutheran denomination for men and women in armed service. There are 22 Lutheran churches in Kansas City where this church group is well represented.

Rev. Grosse has been pastor here for nearly eight years and during his pastorate, the present church building was erected to a large degree through his untiring efforts, being located convenient to the Northeast Junior college section, where it is the only church for a large population.

In the years since it was erected, the membership has grown but at present, Rev. Grosse states that fully 80 per cent of his congregation is at war or engaged in war defense activities.

A successor to Rev. Grosse will be named, but as yet no one has been selected, it was stated.

Both Rev. and Mrs. Grosse have made a wide circle of friends while residing in Monroe and their leaving is greatly regretted. However, they feel sure that the new assignment will give a broader scope to their abilities in a time of war.

Rev. Grosse will continue his pastoral work when occasion permits and in fact will assume duties at the Lutheran center similar to those of a chaplain. He is well cognizant of such duties as he served as acting chaplain at Selman field before permanent chaplains were selected.

LOCAL GUARDS SEEK RECRUITS

Many More Men Are Required To Bring Ranks Up To 105 Men

The home guard, affiliated with the state guard, is in need of many more recruits to bring the roster up to 105. There are now but 64, and these extra men are badly needed.

Otha C. Roddy is captain; H. Flood Madison, Jr., is first lieutenant, and Gaston B. Folds, second lieutenant.

Sergeants are: Curtis Johnson, Jules Davis, William Renwick, Cecil Hill, Herbert Hayes and Fred Godwin. Corporals are Adner Brown, Karl Hayes, Adwin Ritter, Joe Smith and Eugene Bruscato.

The drill night is held every Tuesday at 8 p.m., in the old armory, nearly opposite Hotel Monroe on South Grand street.

All men who are qualified and have the time are specially urged to attend the drill next Tuesday night. Men who are already in the home guard feel that they are performing a patriotic duty by serving in this capacity. Still more are urgently needed.

MORRISON TO OPEN CAMPAIGN OCT. 30

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2.—(Special)—Congressman Jimmy Morrison, Democrat, Louisiana, who is a candidate for governor in the coming January election in Louisiana, announced here today that he would formally open his campaign at the first annual sweet potato show which is to be held in Jonesboro, La., October 30. This is sponsored by the Jonesboro-Hodge Lions club and Morrison has already accepted the invitation to speak there.

He will have several other speaking engagements on the same day and will continue a speaking program daily thereafter until the January election. Morrison stated that he had several campaign headquarters already opened and that he intended to open his New Orleans headquarters, as well as in many other sections of the state, in the near future. He reiterated that whereas the campaign would probably be shorter this time than ever before on account of the war that he was going to make a very complete and aggressive campaign all over Louisiana. He also stated he would be in Louisiana by October 10 in order to qualify. "Thousands of letters are pouring in," he said "and I have received more encouragement than ever before."

OFFICER AT ZOO KILLS WRONG BEAR

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Oct. 2.—(AP)—All bears look alike to City Policeman Carl Jackson, and that's why the Little Rock municipal zoo is short one good bear.

It seems that "Old Tom," patriarch of the bear den at the zoo, developed a perpetual grouch that made him hardly compatible with his associates. After he had killed one of the younger animals and attacked another, Curator Ed Hefele decided to destroy him.

Jackson, who was cruising through the park, was enlisted to do the shooting. While the curator stood outside to attract the animal, Jackson perched atop the rock den.

A dark form burst forth from the den and Jackson blazed away. The bear crumpled in a heap.

"Nice shot," yelled Hefele. . . . "But, you've got the wrong bear."

Another bear, in the cave at the time, had been chased out by the offending animal. "Old Tom" is still in the cave.

And the curator said he might let him stay there.

The Argentine fairy armadillo grows to a length of only five inches.

On German Soil

One of the reasons for the supremely confident and arrogant spirit of the Nazi leaders and the German people during the early years of the war was their belief that the soil of the Reich would never be touched by the foot of an invader. They had adequate reasons for their conviction that they were secure against invasion.

The Nazi armies dominated the continent of Europe and were deep in Russian territory and there seemed little prospect that this situation would be altered appreciably. In fact, the German people had the word of Goering—about whom, incidentally, little is heard these days—that a hostile plane would not be permitted to darken the fair skies above the Reich.

Time and the resources of the United Nations, combined with brilliance of leadership and the courage of fighting men, have changed all of that. The German retreat in Russia, which for a time was carried on as an orderly retirement, has assumed the aspects of a rout. Now that the Nazis have been unable to hold a line along the Dnieper, there seems to be no place for them to attempt to make a stand short of the Polish border. The most significant aspect of the whole Russian operation lies in the increasing evidence that the German armies have lost both their will and their power to resist.

In Italy, too, the fortunes of war have turned definitely against the Nazis as the offensive by the Fifth army goes into high gear and Corsica is conquered, with the important practical result that all of northern Italy and much of southern France will be brought within bombing range.

Impressive indication of the transformation in German morale in consequence of military reverses comes in the form of the formation of the "Union of German Officers," made up of captive high commanders now in Russia. These men, away from Hitler's control, presumably are free to declare themselves. They call upon their country to overthrow the fuehrer and establish a government "having the confidence of the people and strong enough to bring about peace."

This declaration constitutes a recognition of the inevitability of defeat by those leaders who are best qualified to appraise the prospects for the future. After four years they are convinced that they have engaged in a "senseless, futile war" which might "any day cause a national catastrophe." Is it not probable that the German people, observing the destruction of their greatest cities, the consistent retirement of their armies and the deepening danger to their own soil, share this conviction of disaster?

It is typically German, of course, that what these specimens worry about is "national catastrophe." The international catastrophe of which they are guilty seems not to worry them at all.

STATE DEPARTMENT CHANGES

Amid the varied extemporizations of this global war, on the American side, one of the most striking is the placing of a man without political or diplomatic experience in the second ranking post that deals with the formulation and execution of American foreign poliices.

Designation of Mr. Stettinius as successor of Sumner Welles has much to recommend it on the economic side. If a "breath of fresh air" is what is needed in the department of state, Mr. Stettinius is a good man to do some tactful air conditioning.

Brought up in the tradition of American finance and business in their largest scope, with a record of successful accomplishment as lend-lease administrator, Mr. Stettinius has proved that he can get along well with people of different nationalities—in particular, the British and the Russians, the two largest lend-lease beneficiaries—and, what is no less important, with the various temperaments and viewpoints that govern the domestic war effort. To have been able to accomplish this shows that Mr. Stettinius possesses a diplomatic approach which ought to be useful in fitting him into the state department organization, of which Mr. Hull's personal sensibilities are a part.

The economic side of American foreign policies is bound to become more and more important as Europe and Asia are reconquered and freed and the enormous problems of relief and reconstruction present themselves in scores of different guises. To supplement Mr. Stettinius' work in this field President Roosevelt places all of the agencies of economic warfare, with the exception of Nelson Rockefeller's group, under the direction of Leo T. Crowley, who, from modest beginnings in the federal establishment, now emerges as a major figure in the war setup.

To integrate all of the sprawling economic agencies under the general direction of the department of state is a useful and essential step. The two newcomers have had no experience with the conservative department of state tradition, which will be a good thing if it works. But meanwhile the need will be no less for a clarification of American foreign policies and foreign relationships, which none but the president and Mr. Hull can accomplish.

A TIP TO THE COURTS

This suit not yet having been filed, there can be no contempt of court in making an advance suggestion to the nation's judges. It is this:

By law, workers are entitled to be represented in wage bargaining by agents of their own choosing, that is, by unions. Accordingly, the Mine Workers' union has negotiated a contract with the Illinois producers which, both sides say, is an advance compromise of potential damage suits for portal-to-portal pay. In this the union represented its members.

If, now, this contract is approved by the WLB and becomes effective, and individual union miners take their compromise settlement and then try to sue to collect again, the courts should hold that by their legal agent's action the miners are foreclosed from prosecuting such suits.

Germans in the Ruhr valley undoubtedly are beginning to wonder why they ever thought Hitler was such a good idea.

Jimmie Fidler IN HOLLYWOOD

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 2.—Headlines acclaiming the return of the Hollywood cavalcade from its coast-to-coast bond tour have been followed, almost daily, by editorials extolling the stars who made that tour, not only for the service done their country, but for building good will for the movie industry. Far be it from me to deny that they deserve every word of praise.

But there's another editorial that should be printed—an editorial extolling two people who have just returned from a much longer and more dangerous trip: Leslie Fenton and Ann Dvorak. They haven't sold bonds; they haven't spent much time entertaining audiences. But when it comes to building good will for Hollywood, they take second place to none.

Fenton was "getting the breaks" as an M-G-M director when Germany invaded Poland. Miss Dvorak (his wife), one of the finest actresses in show business, was working steadily in good roles. Both are American citizens, but they felt that the war was our war from the start. Instead of waiting for Uncle Sam to join the shooting, they sacrificed everyhing and went to England, where Fenton joined the British army.

He's been wounded, decorated and commissioned a major. Ann has worked in English war plants and undergone the months-long air blitz of 1940. They have the love and admiration of everyone in England, and certainly they deserve the thanks of everyone in Hollywood.

This week, one of Hollywood's most famous stars is celebrating the 15th anniversary of his debut in show business. Despite his colorful screen character, his private life has been one of admirable decorum. He has never been involved in a love triangle, never been divorced, never been hailed into court on any scandalous charge. In short, he has proved beyond dispute the fact that a good actor, without turning his off-screen life into a three-ring circus, can bring healthy laughter to the whole world. I give you Mickey Mouse!

Most people who have seen "Watch on the Rhine" will agree with me that the performance of Paul Lukas is one of the finest in screen history—a piece of work well deserving an academy award. They will also agree when I predict that his chances of getting an "Oscar" are about as slim as Hitler's chances of winning the war. Lukas, unfortunately, is not under contract to a major studio; therefore no one is financially interested in building his prestige. There has been more than suspicion, these many years, that academy awards are influenced as much "by politics" as by merit. If Hollywood wants to refute that charge, a perfect argument would be to post the name of Paul Lukas among this year's candidates.

Alice Faye's announcement that Sergeant Stork will pay her a second visit in April must be depressing to the 20th Century-Foxes, who so far have managed to keep her before the movie cameras against her will. Alice makes no bones about her desire to settle down to a full-time career as a wife and mother. She wanted to retire when her first baby was born. The protests of her fans, cleverly incited by studio publicists, made her return to make-up. After the second child is born, the pull luring her away from the screen will be twice as strong. Incidentally, why write letters urging Alice to violate a completely natural yen? Too many stars cling to their make-up kits and sacrifice real happiness in the process.

Speaking of letters, Director Sam Wood, currently filming a laid-in-Germany opus entitled "Address Unknown," tells me that he's been hearing from cranks, who strenuously object to the use of scenes from Goethe's "Faust" in his picture, on the grounds that they are part and parcel of German culture. These letter-writers should indulge in a little self-examination, for the tolerance that gives birth to criticism of that kind is not far removed from the bigotry that made Hitler's Nazis build bonfires in the town squares of the Reich and burn the books written by men like Ludwig and Spinoza. I don't think Goethe would have liked Adolph, either.

There's a big campaign under way in Hollywood to raise funds for a museum in which to display for the edification of posterity those now ancient things which had significance in the building of the movie industry. It's a worthy idea—and I'd like to make one urgent suggestion. Why not store in that museum, once and for all, certain familiar movie plots. After 20 years of faithful service, they deserve a rest.

BY HENRY McLEMORE

I have seen only two baseball games this year. One was in Hyde Park in London, and the other was in Iceland. This scarcely qualifies me to pick the winner of the world series between New York Yankees and the St. Louis Cardinals, but I am going to try my hand at it, nevertheless.

I have an unusual reason for wanting to do this. The reason is Captain Billy Southworth, Flying Fortress pilot, whose dad manages the Cardinals. 'Way back in March, Bill took me on a practice flight in his Fort, The Bad Check—it always bounces back—and scared the living daylights out of me. He wanted to try out his nose guns and he got permission for me to go along as a passenger, saying he thought I would enjoy the little hop. Billy, even then a veteran of twelve or thirteen missions over Germany and France, gave me a ride I'll never forget. We were over England all the time but Billy drove that ship as if we were being hammered with flak and chased by Focke-Wulfs, and I couldn't have been any more scared if we had been.

When we came back to the base, and Billy had put her down as if she were a feather, he said, "Like your ride?" I said "Smile when you say that to me brother."

Billy laughed and turning to his crew, said, "The man should come along with us over the Happy Valley sometime if he thinks that was a rough ride, shouldn't he?" The Happy Valley, as you probably know, is the name the bomber crews have for the Ruhr, one of the most heavily defended sections on earth.

"Billy," I said, "there is only one way I can get even with you for scaring me half to death."

"What's that?" he asked.

"Next to dropping your bombs right on the target, the thing you'd like best would be to have your dad win another world series with the Cards next fall, isn't it."

"That's about right," he said.

"Okay," I said. "My revenge is all set. They aren't going to win the next series."

"How would you be knowing that, standing here in England in March?" Billy asked.

So I explained to him. I asked him if he had ever read my stuff when I was a sportswriter. He said he had. Then I asked him if he remembered what kind of a picker I was, when it came to fights, baseball games, horse races, golf, tennis and all the other sports.

"You never picked anything right in your life," he said. "I know people who supported families betting against you."

"That's just where I've got you, Billy, when the world series comes around, and if the Cardinals are in there, I am going to ——"

He broke me off.

"Don't do that to Dad. Don't pick the Cards to win," he said.

"Gotta do it, Billy," I said. "Maybe it'll teach you not to invite middle-aged correspondents to ride around in that flak-happy ship of yours."

He offered me all sorts of bribes not to do it. He said he had one fresh egg that he would give me, and that he would even throw in a can of tomato junce. When I remained firm he threatened to slip out some night and bomb my quarters.

Now world series time has come around. Much as I like Billy, I'll teach him a lesson.

Baseball fans, I give you the winner of the 1943 world series:

The St. Louis Cardinals.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Sunday School Lesson For Oct. 10
Lesson Text: Exodus 20:3-7; Matthew 4: 10; 6:9; John 4:23, 24
By William E. Gilroy, D. D.

Reverence for the name of God was deeply instilled in the religion of ancient Judaism, and it has continued to mark the religion of the devout Jew to our own time.

It is a heritage of Christianity from Judaism, and it might be said that it is an inevitable flowering of sincere religon, no matter what the form or the object of worship. The missionary hymn says, "The heathen in his blindness bows down to wood and stone." But if he is earnest and devout he bows in reverence, and, knowing no beter, as so great an authority as St. Paul has reminded us, his faith is accounted unto him for righteousness. God does not expect from him better than he has known, or has been given.

What does it mean to be a reverent Christian? That is the question that gets right at the heart of what this lesson has to teach.

It means, first of all, reverence for the name of God. Many Roman Catholics belong to what is called the Holy Name Society, in which all the members are pledged against profanity, and especially against taking the name of God, or of the Lord Jesus, in vain. It would be well if all Protestants were similarly pledged, though Protestant teaching and the practice of all sincere and devout Protestants have been strongly against profanity.

In the play, "Tobacco Road," which has had a long run on the New York stage and in other parts of the country, a leading character repeatedly uses frightful, and to a reverent Christian, blood-curdling oaths, involving the name of God and the name of Jesus. But that character, Jeeter Lester, is one of the lowest, most ignorant, and most miserable types ever portrayed on the stage—a man from the very dregs of our American society, whose character and ways are a judgment upon our failure to build nobility and decency into every part of our American democracy.

If more self-respecting men who are reless in their speech about using the name of God, or the name of our Divine Master, could realize that by so doing they are lowering themselves, even if it be only by some degree, toward the level of so repulsive and brutal a type, they might be brought to realize the folly and sin of profane speech.

Lesser forms of profanity tend to lose any emphasis they might have by the very fact that they become repetitious and common. Certain military men and governmental leaders have lately taken to interlarding their speech with "damn" and "damned" in the hope of creating a stronger impression. These expressions become rather stale and wearisome, and the ultimate result is that a Quakerish sort of person, whose "Yea is Yea, and whose Nay, Nay," makes a far deeper and more lasting impression by his very simplicity and plainness of speech.

STATE IS AHEAD IN USING YOUTH LABOR

BATON ROUGE, La., Oct. 2.—(AP)—Louisiana, where garden crops were saved this year by boys and girls, was a jump ahead of many states in using youth labor, I. H. Schmitt, Washington, chief of the extension division of victory farm volunteers, said on a visit here.

This state, he said, rearranged school schedules several years ago, so that youth might aid in the strawberry sections. He predicted that an "army of youngsters" will harvest a large portion of the nation's food, feed and fiber crops.

(NEA Service Staff Correspondent)

Smoke from the barrage of criticism fired at the office of war information has been so thick as almost to obscure one of the agency's biggest, best-done and most important jobs. That is the coordination and direction of the many campaigns designed to tell the civilians where his patriotic efforts are most needed, and how best to use them.

OWI's office of program coordination acts as a middleman between government agencies, which need voluntary civilian help in countless matters, and the public, which is generally willing to help if it only knows the what-why-how-and-when of it. So today we are buying war bonds, canning home-grown fruits and vegetables, salvaging fat, shunning the black market, sharing our car, taking war industry jobs, buttoning our lip, and a lot of other things, not only because we're glad to but because OWI told us of the necessity.

This information program is unquestionably the biggest advertising and publicity job that the country has ever seen. And it is being put over because OWI has, in addition to wise direction, the hearty and enthusiastic assistance of every informational medium in the country.

The press, radio, motion pictures, magazines, the advertising agencies, and of course the advertisers, have given valuable voluntary cooperation. This is rather surprising, for a not inconsiderable segment of business doesn't like OWI or OPA or WPB or the way the administration generally is running the war on the home front. But the OWI program people report that reluctance is almost non-existent and that the remark they hear most often from business is, "How else can we help?"

Their help begins after the spade-work on a campaign is done. Each campaign (or "information program," as OWI prefers to call it) begins with the request from some agency for assistance—collection, conservation, or some other civilian activity.

Dope Sheet

OWI first has to know the identity and nature of the problem and what's to be done about, before it can pass along the information. So it asks the agency for a detailed memorandum. This is expanded by OWI researchers and writers into a "campaign platform."

It's a complicated job. OWI may have as many as 40 campaigns going on at once. Each agency wants everything done immediately— even though occasionally the agency can't agree on a policy for the campaign, and sometimes is not prepared to follow through with its own part after the civilans' job is done.

Some time before or just after the media conference, the War Advertising council is called in. This is a volunteer, non-profit organization made up of representatives of the country's leading advertisers, advertising agencies, and advertising medium firms. It has a skeleton staff of paid workers who get their money from a chipped-in fund from the council members. But the majority of the work is done for free.

The council appoints a "task force" of coordinators and copywriters for each campaign. They think up advertising to match the campaign's central theme or slogan (usually created by OWI) and, on all major campaigns, send out so-called formula folders, from which advertisers may adapt for their own use.

Free Advertising

The patriotic campaign advertising you see in your newspaper or magazine may have got there at the suggestion of the publisher, the advertiser, or even the services that manufacture matrices for printing them. But it added up to a conservatively estimated $2,000,000 worth of free advertising space for the government in the past year.

It is true, and it is also fair, that this sum is deductible from the advertisers' income tax, but that fact is obviously not the only reason for the ads. To match this contribution, 428 magazines have pledged OWI a free page of advertising each month. And the country's newspapers have supplemented advertising with columns of free publicity for various campaigns whose value can't be measured.

All down the line, from intelligent planning through volunteer assistance to public response, OWI's information program is one of the best home-front accomplishments to date.

Q—How many Allied prisoners are believed to be in Jap hands?

A—370,00, according to a report from London.

Q—What are the sources of the new drug, penicillin?

A—It is prepared from an excretion of commond bread and cheese mold.

Q—Can four people play gin rummy?

A—Yes. The rules are basically the same, except that 125 points constitute game, instead of 100.

Q—The recently-launched aircraft carrier "Wasp" had how many predecessors of the same name?

A—The new "Wasp" is the seventh U. S. warship to bear that name.

Q—Why are diamonds of industrial importance?

A—They are used for cutting superhard metal alloys, and are used in dies through which fine copper wire, used in airplane instruments, is drawn.

M'CLENDONS HOSTS TO CHURCH SCHOOL

LAKE PROVIDENCE, La., Oct. 2.—(Special)—Mr. and Mrs. R. E. McClendon were hosts to the September meeting of the Emma Ingram church school class social.

Mr. McClendon, presiding for the business session, was assisted by Mrs. F. A. Babb, secretary.

Placing song book racks on the back of the church pews was the fall project chosen by the class.

Mr. McClendon, in retiring, expressed appreciation for the support and cooperation given during the year and the class in return gave Mr. McClendon a rising vote of thanks for his interest and splendid leadership the past year.

Officers elected for the coming year were Dr. D. F. Davis, president; Russell Fisher, vice-president; Mrs. Sue Abernathy, secretary and treasurer.

Guests of the evening included Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Babb, Rev. and Mrs. A. C. Lawton and Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Stuart.

The shrine of St. Anne de Beaupre, 22 miles from Quebec, is a famous objective of tourists by the thousands every year.

New York Day By Day

By CHARLES B. DRISCOLL
Title Reg. U. S. Patent Office

NEW YORK—Diary: Tang of autumn in the air and leaves sifting down. . . . Comes welcome news that a special edition of fifty thousand copies of my book, "Kansas Irish," is to be printed in pocket size for the armed services. . . . Daughter Pat, wearing a gauze mask as protection from long-accumulated dust, has invaded my study and bodily begun trying to put some order into it, removing bushels of clippings, papers, unanswered letters and odds and ends. For years I have resisted, but the study floor became so cluttered that Captain Kidd couldn't find room to lie between the stacks of books and papers.

I wonder what Mr. Joseph Patrick Kennedy intends to do with the old Siegel-Cooper building, at Nineteenth street and Sixth avenue, which he bought lately. It is an interesting site but the building, once one of the busiest in New York, has lain virtually vacant for nearly three decades.

Siegel-Cooper was once one of the greatest department stores in New York. "Meet Me at the Fountain" was a slogan known to every New Yorker and many thousands of romances bloomed in the trysiting place beside the famous fountain there.

Another favorite spot for meeting what was not then called one's date was the Peackock Alley in the old Waldorf, where now the Empire State building stands.

After disappearance of that monumental hotel, the corridors on the main floor of the Astor captured the trysting trade, which never meant much to the hotel, except sale of cigars and breath-drops at the news stands. When the main floor was completely modernized, brightly lighted, and many long seats removed, couples made appointments to meet at or beside the Times building, now Times Tower. Comfort was disappearing for the date-makers. Many messages were scrawled on the stones and signboards of the Times building, especially by those who were stood up.

Now there is a discreet tendency of the younger generation to meet "under the clock" at the Biltmore. But the place is well patrolled and maintained in such dignity that mere waiting is discouraged. Drinks are served in the enormous lounge, and the average "date" feels it incumbent upon him to buy a round or two before the pair sets out for the theater or Aunt Mary's, or wherever it's going.

The movement to invest in large parcels of realty in Manhattan has grown since we entered the war. Ever since the end of the big boom, large parcels had been unsalable, because nobody wanted to build any big buildings.

Charles M. Schwab told me, shortly before his death, that it was almost impossible to sell the large solid blocks on which stands his great castle. "Nobody can afford to live in the house," he said, "and nobody wants to live in an apartment house to cover the cost. The best we can do is to hope for a series of deals that will put a row of large apartment houses on the site.

Not so any more. The Waldorf-Astors, of England, started to pick up solid blocks and block fronts in New York during the blitz against London. They bought the Ritz, a large art gallery, the old Vanderbilt home on Fifth avenue, and half a dozen other big parcels.

Joe Kennedy had taken in several other large parcels, besides the ones I've just mentioned.

These folk think there's going to be a big building boom when the lights come on again.

MARTIN URGES AID FOR POLES

Stricken Country To Be Assisted Through War Fund Campaign

Earl M. Martin, of the United War Fund of Louisiana, 405 Triad building, Baton Rouge, is announcing the start of this campaign which is to be held from October 18 to November 5 and he assures that every dollar contributed will go to the relief of Polish exiles and Polish soldiers who are prisoners in German camps.

In this connection he states as follows:

"Poland was the first nation to feel the full might of the Nazi war machine," and the Polish people were the first to suffer at the hands of the Nazis horrors that are without parallel in world history.

"No one knows how many thousands of men, women, and children of Poland have been German victims of mass execution, or deliberate and methodical starvation. They are beyond help, and it is impossible, too, to reach the masses still living in Poland under Nazi domination. Their deliverance will come later.

"But there are nearly three million who have escaped Poland, and found refuge in other countries. It is these people that are being assisted through Polish war relief, one of the 17 member agencies of the United War Fund, which in our state is the United War Fund of Louisiana.

"Two million of these exiled Poles are in Russia, 30,000 in unoccupied France, 15,000 are in Switzerland, and the others are scattered throughout Europe in Spain, Portugal, Turkey, and Greece; while some are in Africa, and some in the United States. Most of them are entirely dependent upon charity for food, clothing, shelter, medical treatment, and other necessities, particularly those in European countries which already are hard put to sustain their own people.

"To assist Polish war relief in the gigantic task of ministering to these unfortunates, the National War Fund is allocating approximately $3,750,000 of its $125,000,000 national budget. This will include as beneficiaries the 200,000 soldiers interned in Germany, who have no heat in winter, no hot water or soap for bathing or washing their clothes, and never enough of even such poor food as the "master race" metes out to him. These Polish war prisoners, now receiving each month about 10,000 food packages from Polish war relief, will fare much better under the assistance the Polish fund receives from the N. W. F.

"The people of Ouachita parish," Mr. Martin said, "can help directly to send more adequate aid to these suffering people, by their contributions to the U. W. F. campaign. Other agencies which will share in the funds raised are USO, the United Seamen's Service, War Prisoners Aid, and 11 organized groups for relief to people of the United Nations."

MEMORIAL SERVICES FOR BAR PLANNED

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 2.—(AP.—Memorial services for members of the bench and bar who have died in the past year are scheduled for 11 a.m. Monday, October 4 before the Louisiana supreme court here.

The exercises will be opened by Sumter D. Marks, Jr., president of the Louisiana State Bar association and closed by Chief Justice Charles A. O'Neill of the supreme court.

The general eulogy for the three members of the judiciary and thirty-three members of the bar who have passed away will be delivered by H. Payne Breazeale, Baton Rouge, state bar vice-president.

The three late members of the judiciary are District Judges William Carruth Jones, Sr., Baton Rouge, and James Thomas Shell, Bastrop, and William Joseph Hopper of New Orleans recorder's court.

During the exercises a white marble bust of Thomas J. Semmes, prominent New Orleans attorney who died June 22, 1899, will be presented to the supreme court on behalf of his daughter, Mrs. Sylvester Pierce Walmsley and family.

A committee named to make the presentation is composed of Joseph W. Carroll, E. Howard McCaleb and Edward Rightor, New Orleans attorneys.

R. E. RUSHING ENDS 30 YEARS IN U. S. POSTAL SERVICE

Veteran Letter Carrier Is To Take It Easy After 3 Decades Of Work

Last Friday, October 1 was an unusual day for R. E. Rushing, of 103 North 9th street, West Monroe. For the first time in 30 years he failed to go to work as usual as a Monroe letter carrier. On that day his pension of half pay for life began.

Thirty years is a long time, and there ing recalls, since he started work here in 1913 as a clerk in the old postoffice building. Fourteen or fifteen years as clerk and a like number as mail carrier for route number 9 in West Monroe and route number 3 in Monroe.

That's his story. And in those years were a lot of wet, tired feet, a lot of dog bites and two inoculations for rabies. . . .

"At government expense," Mr. Rushing added calmly, with a twinkle in his eye.

We asked him (oh, very tactfully) about his birthday Mr. Rushing quickly and emphatically said that this event occurred during a violent hailstorm April 29, 1880, and that the big bird almost didn't make it. Close squeeze, he said.

(This, when Mr. Rushing upon being asked for a "story" by this reporter informed us he was a good Christian man and didn't tell stories. Hm.)

Well, what are you going to do with your spare time, now, we said, and his answer, blunt and happy come . . . "Fish!" R. E. Mathews, his fellow mail carrier, insists Mr. Rushing will probably do as much work now as he ever did, and it almost looks like it, because when we asked this Mr. Rushing what he planned to do daily what do you suppose his answer was? He's going to get up a 5:30 and take his son to work, come back and later take Mrs. Rushing to town! (He hopes to get some fishing in by night but suspects strongly, he said, that he won't make it). And then he grinned, and so did Mr. Mathews who helped us "pump," Mr. Rushing, we must admit, was rather propelled along by our force, but he bore it well.

They like that man a lot down there at the P. O., so Wednesday night about twenty co-workers got together at Mr. Mathews' house, 605 Cypress street in West Monroe, and had quite a party in honor of Mr. Rushing. They gave him a gold watch chain with engraved charm, and a pocketbook, and Mr. Rushing said it was "sure mighty fine of 'em."

We wondered a bit as we shook hands and wished him luck whether he might not be going to miss that daily call to work and the privilege of bringing longed-for letters to friends and neighbors. All the crazy banter that takes place behind scenes in the postoffice before the men start out for work . . . and the comradliness in a good man's happy, calm routine . . . and . . . well . . .

And then we thought of the dog bites!

Probably going to be mighty good just to "fish," we guessed.

'PERFUME' FOUND IN SEA

Ambergris, valuable component of some perfumes, is a waxy concentration formed, by indigestion, in the intestine of the sperm whale. It is most frequently found floating in the sea or tossed up on the beaches and thus is believed to have been vomited by the ailing whale.

LOUISIANA FORESTS NEED PROTECTION

BATON ROUGE, La., Oct. 2.—(AP)—Louisiana has a special interest in Fire Prevention Week, October 3-10, in the state's 16,000,000 acres of forest land, B. A. Bateman, extension forester, said today.

Many Louisiana timber owners, he reported, continue the damaging practice of burning and clear-cutting timber, when they should regard farm woodland as a "bank account" and cut "only mature trees."

Farmers interested in learning about proper production and management practices, he suggested, should contact county agents, the forestry division of the department of conservation, the federal forest service or the soil conservation service.

Other than as a food, buttermilk is used principally in paint.

SODALITY HOLDS FIRST MEETING

Elects Officers And Plans For Work In St. Matthew's High School

St. Matthew's High School Sodality held its first meeting in the scholastic year this week with the following major officers assuming control: Luara Leah Worsham, prefect; Raymond Spohrer, vice-prefect; Sue Spatafora, secretary, and J. E. Faler, treasurer.

This executive group chose as chairmen to assist them for 1943-1944 these sodalists: Freddie Jean Endom, Our Lady's committee; Marjorie Johnson, Eucharistic committee; Emily Cunningham, Apostolic committee; Wellman Loviza, Catholic Truth committee; John Hart Worsham, Legion of Decency; R. B. Hill, publicity committee; Dorothy Cascio, Apostleship of prayer; Sarah Jane Buttitta, scrapbook committee; Mary Norris and Bill Zinsmeister, social life committee; Ann Slavant, birthday committee! Liberta Guirlando; bulletin board committee; and J. E. Faler and John Browne the newsheet committee. The chairman of the different committees announced those whom they had chosen to assist them in their committee work.

Plans were made to edit a newsheet, St. Matthew's Sodality Informer, with reporters elected from each of the high school classes. The reporters are: from the senior class, Dorothy Cascio and John Hart Worsham; from the junior class, Joseph Harsala and Emily Cunningham; from the sophomore class, Cary Hodges and J. D. Cameron; and the freshie class chose Ellen Browne and Helen Wilds. Bob BeDoit was selected as the cartoon artist.

The program for the year was discussed. The highlights of the year's work will consist in the Animated Rosary, the annual retreat, the Christmas play, mailing 100 pamphlets on timely topics to the service men, several mission drives, a book review, vocation week program, a style show, several skits and panel discussions, and the annual crowning in May.

The social life committee sponsors one entertainment every month.

The Sodality is the most outstanding and active organization in the school and includes in its membership over 95 per cent of the high school student body. The official date for the reception of new members is December 8.

Members in the Sodality seek to imitate Christ and His blessed mother in their daily conduct. An extensive and intensive study is made of the two perfect models of young people, Christ and His mother. This concentration on the lives so full of example for us, serves to promote more charity and consideration of one another and also results in a greater effort to fulfill in the case of each student, those duties of his particular state in life.

The Right Rev. N. F. Vandegaer is the director of the Sodality and Sr. M. Patricia is the faculty moderator.

Alligators and crocodiles, of all living creatures, have the smallest brains in proportion to their size.

FIRE PREVENTION BROADCAST FIXED

Residential Losses From Blazes Many Millions Annually

America's residential fire loss amounts to hundreds of millions of dollars annually, according to the National Fire Protection association, and the great bulk of this fire loss is traceable to sheer carelessness. Today, no amount of insurance can replace the homes and furnishings destroyed by fire. Even a localized blaze doing damage to just one room is a blow to the conservation campaign.

The first step in the fight against fire on the home front is a knowledge of the common hazards. Every citizen should seek out these hazards during fire prevention week, says the N. F. P. A., and make plans to eliminate them. Fire Prevention Week, which begins today, will be observed this year from October 3-9.

Heating plants from furnace to chimney should be thoroughly cleaned and checked by an expert for defects. Wall surfaces adjacent to furnaces or stoves should be protected against the danger of overheating.

Because sparks lighting on flammable wooden roofs cause a third of all America's residential fires, all such roofs should be covered over with a non-critical, fire-retardant roofing material. Fire-retardant roofs not only protect individual structures but are among the most effective conflagration stops.

Electrical equipment should always be disconnected immediately after using. Worn or frayed cords should be repaired or replaced, and cords should never be run under rugs. Only appliances bearing the approved label of the Underwriters' Laboratories should be purchased.

Gasoline should never be used for home dry cleaning. The latent destructive power of a pint of gasoline has been likened to a pound of dynamite, and the friction created by rubbing cloth together is enough to ignite the fumes.

Accumulations of rubbish, old furniture, mattresses, and the like in closets, attics, or basements not only are a prey to spontaneous ignition, but feed fire-starting from other sources. Good housekeeping is the best defense against fires in the house, in the garage, or in the yard.

Keep your matches in a safe place out of reach of small children. Cigarettes, smoking pipe embers, and matches should always be completely extinguished before they are discarded. Plenty of ash trays are a good prevention measure.

To be effective such preventive measure should not only be inaugurated during Fire Prevention Week but also continued without relaxation through the year. Members of every family should also learn how to turn in an alarm and how to conduct themselves in the event that fire does break out despite all precautions.

Monroe citizens will hear an effective broadcast concerning fire prevention Wednesday evening at 7:30, according to L. J. Honeycutt, fire inspector for the local fire department.

LEAVES HOUSE POST FOR WAR

James E. Van Zandt Regards His Duty In War, Not Congress

The man who helped rescue two Monroe men from death in World war I, has again gone to war. James E. Van Zandt, former national commander of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, has again entered warfare. The local men whose lives he saved in the other war are Leo and Fensky Terzia.

Van Zandt, native of Altoona, Pa., is the only man to be reelected to the office of V. F. W. national commander. He also served in congress and was active in securing the passage of the law by which soldiers received a bonus.

Van Zandt has visited Monroe three times in connection with his post as head of the V. F. W., and has a wide circle of friends wherever he goes. He recently resigned his seat in congress to return to the navy where he holds the rank of commander, having been in the naval reserve since his discharge from the navy in 1919. He was recalled to the navy after Pearl Harbor and served for more than a year in the Atlantic and was decorated for his services in action near Iceland and other north Atlantic waters during the toughest time of submarine warfare in that ocean.

Van Zandt stated when leaving congress that a man can run for office at any time, but can serve his country perhaps only once in a lifetime.

He was elected to congress three times. He is a Republican and comes from a Republican district.

The Terzia brothers were on a torpedoed ship in World war I and were picked up in mid-ocean by the crew of the destroyer on which Van Zandt was serving at the time.

'ETERNAL LIFE' IS DR. WARREN TOPIC

"Eternal Life" will be the theme of Dr. C. C. Warren's sermon at the First Baptist church, Monroe, at 11 a.m. today as the special revival services begin the second week. "We have never had a man to assist us in a revival whose messages have been more highly praised and more favorably than the ones Dr. Warren is bringing us,' 'stated the pastor, Rev. L. T. Hastings. Record attendances are expected today, beginning with the Sunday school. The services will continue next week, 9:30 a.m. and 7:45 p.m.

At the evening hour tonight Dr. Warren will speak on "The Brazen Serpent."

KANE'S NEW BOOK GOES ON MARKET

'The Bayous Of Louisiana' Is Saga On Lafourche Swamp

By Milo Thompson

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 5.—(AP)—Harnett T. Kane's new book, "The Bayous of Louisiana," was released today by the publishers, William Morrow and company, of New York.

The author of "Louisiana Hayride," which was the saga of a political era, presents in this work the saga of Bayou Lafourche, primarily; but, to tell the story of the people who live on what he calls "the longest village street," he had necessarily to sketch in a description of the bayou country itself, the other peoples of Louisiana, the historical background and something, too, of the back lands of grass away from the bayou and the Teche country beyond.

The book, therefore, will probably serve as a valuable source book for the future notwithstanding that it is done in idyllic prose and studded with anecdotes calculated to make easy and pleasant reading.

Not the least of its various appeals is the fact that it does not deal with a land that used to be, but with a land that actually exists today. It covers not only the life of a farming, fishing and trapping people but a people touched today by the oil industry.

"Some marsh men," he has written, "have as new source of wealth, receiving thousands of dollars an acre in leases and royalties. They install telephones, import bricks for homes, and do not hear when friends call them big heads. Grand isle has cows on its beaches; Golden Meadow offers them its sidewalks. During the day the herds go into the marshes; with nightfall, the mosquitoes drive them inland. Having learned that the highway is not a safe place, they move quietly into the footpaths, in the glare of bars of flimsy construction and imposing neon lights. The soft notes of the French girls mingle with the sharper tones of the Texiens around the juke boxes; to reach any one of the numerous establishments, one has to skirt cows and cow dogs. And above the blare of music comes the sound of long moos over the evening air."

His very first paragraph is a vivid description of the land itself:

"It is a place," he has written, "that often seems unable to make up its mind whether it will be earth or water, and so it compromises. The result is that much of moist lower Louisiana belongs to neither element. The line of demarcation is vague and changing. The distinction between degrees of well-soaked ground is academic except to one who steps upon what looks like soil but finds that it is something less.

"Here is the fringe of a continent, land in the slow making."

He deals sympathetically with the language of the bayou world, finding The Acadian wrestle with English illuminating. Of this Kane has written:

"He advances upon it with the same flourish of hand and voice which he gives his native language. When he wants emphasis, he finds ways to get it. The fish, it is little-little. The magnolia is white-white; and white-white, to my way of thinking, is a lot whiter than that limp term, very white."

Here is one of his paragraphs about the language:

"'I 'I like that, yes,' he assured you. 'I don' want any, no.' 'I laugh til I bus' me.' Gender of words, in French and in English as well, is frequently a matter of unconcern. 'My mama, he is sick,' says the boy. He takes you through the house: 'This room, she is pretty, don' you think?' Singulars and plurals are employed with grammatical whimsicality: 'He is a nice gentlemans.' 'In Lafayette they got lots of big building.'"

He goes on to say:

"Me, I don't know anybody quite like the Acadian; and I wouldn't be willing to change one accent's worth, or one fine free chuckle, in the interest of all the dull conformity in the world. As for that word Cajun—modern shibboleth—the French contracted Acadien to 'Cadien, well-accented, and the Americans Americanized it to the easier style. In many cases an Acadian may use the word in speaking of another and to another in conversation, but woe to the outsider who tosses it about. To quote a common Louisiana saying, it is the kind of word with which one accompanies a smile, and a frendly one at that."

Kane has given first hand account of all the primary activities of the people with whom he lived to get his material, from shrimping and trapping to boucheries on the farms, from the blessing of the fleets of boats to candle lighting in the cemeteries on All Saints eve. He has produced a moving picture in color—in 334 pages.

STAGE SIFTINGS

The most important character in the play which the Monroe Little Theater will present on the evening of Tuesday, October 26, at Northeast Junior college, does not even appear on the stage. In fact, the playwright had this character killed off a year before the curtain rises.

The character in question in Rebecca, who gives the play its reason for being as well as, logically enough, its name. Rebecca has been gone from the scene a twelvemonth, yet her dead hand rests heavily on the living, from the sinister Mrs. Danvers, whom she dominates completely, to poor Robert, the footman, who faces a crisis in his life because a worthless piece of china left by the dead woman is broken.

There's a lot to know about Rebecca which won't come out until near the end of the play. When it is revealed, the vitality of her legend becomes understandable.

It's too bad we never get a look at her, although we do get a reasonable facsimile at the end of the first act, a likeness near enough to send bereaved husband into a blind rage.

The only picture which otherwise is conveyed to the audience is of a beautiful naked body, washed up on shore after the tragedy in which she w drowned.

Curiosity as to her physical appea ance is secondary to the interest the enigma of her personality. It this psychological curiosity which dispelled toward the end of the pla and the observer then finds that was not so perplexed as he at fi thought about what she actu looked like.

Incongruous as may be the c parison, "Rebecca" has a great de common with "The Women," in both plays revolve about char who do not appear on the stage. is not a male part in "The Wo but it's all about men.

TOWN HALL TO HEAR STETHEM

t Informed Man On Handling Prisoners Of War To Speak

he fall Town Hall season in Mon- will be ushered in on Monday, ctober 4, at the Ouachita Parish igh school auditorium. At that time, Colonel Hubert Stethem, the best informed man in the western hemisphere on handling prisoners of war, will be the speaker. He has been director of all internment operations in the Dominion of Canada, where most British prisoners of war as held.

His theme quite naturally will be: "Prisoners of War." The lecture will start at 8:15 p.m. and will be for members only. However men or women in armed service can be admitted by purchasing single admission tickets at 75 cents, stated the secretary, Mrs. J. B. Kugler.

Mrs. Kugler also desires to stress he fact that this is not the opening a new season. The season started st spring and this will be the third cture of the 1943-1944 season. The ne membership tickets that were rchased last spring will serve to nit to this lecture.

Colonel Stethem recently retired beuse of injuries he received on duty uring an escape of 28 prisoners from estern Ontario internment camp.

He has had 37 years of continuous ilitary service, much of the time the Royal Canadian Dragoons, anadian permanent force. In World ar 1 he served in Canada, England, ance, and Siberia. From 1927 to 38 he served as officer of the Royal ilitary college of Canada (the West Point of Canada).

The colonel's address will include a comprehensive coverage of the entire internment operations of the Dominion of Canada for enemy aliens and prisoners of war, including the close cooperation of the Canadian authorities with our own F. B. I.

He will give many personal experiences concerning the ingenuity and determination of the war prisoners to escape from the internment camps and the treatment accorded them after capture.

He carries with him an elaborate display of "escape objects"—knives, guns, ingenuously manufactured weapons, taken from prisoners. These are to be displayed on a table at the close of the lecture.

He is described as an excellent speaker with powerful voice, and commanding and pleasing personality.

The Associated Executives club, Akron, O., where the colonel appeared on a program last February, reported as follows: "We heard more enthusiastic comment immediately after the lecture, than any other speaker presented to our club has ever received."

AIR TRANSPORT TO BE BOOSTED

Will Be Extended To Thousands Of Main Street Towns

By James J. Strebig
(Associated Press Aviation Editor)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2.—Air transport plans for the future will extend scheduled flying from the Broadway, Michigan avenue and Market street class of cities to America's thousands of Main street towns.

There are about 300 stops on the nation's domestic airlines today. After the war, the number may easily be 3,000.

Certificates already on file with the civil aeronautics board, the government agency which awards air routes, would bring direct air service to thousands of communities not now on routes, and add more than 350,000 miles of scheduled airways to the 41,000 miles over which transports now fly.

Air transport, born as a high speed luxury service, developed naturally between large population centers because the operators had to play for the percentage of traffic willing to risk the air for the time saved.

As the safety of air travel became more apparent, the number of flights and scheduled stops increased. But economic factors tended to slow that expansion beyond the prime population centers.

Today 23 cities of more than 100,000 population do not have direct air transport service. Two of them, Trenton, N. J., and New Bedford, Mass., are not within 25 miles of an airline stop.

Data compiled by the Air Transport Association of America, central organization of the airline companies, shows that scheduled plane service is provided directly to only 40 of the 107 cities between 50,000 and 100,000 population; 24 of the 213 cities of 25,000 to 50,000; 39 of the 665 cities from 10,000 to 25,000, and 11 of the 2,387 communities under 10,000 population. Probably a thousand cities of 5,000 or more population are more than 25 miles from a scheduled air stop.

The CAB has been looking into that situation for a long time. Last spring it asked everyone with an interest in air transport to submit suggestions about so-called "feeder" service. The board prefers to think of it as "local" service, because it feels that there is a tremendous traffic potential for airplane service between nearby cities which now must rely on buses or trains. At the same time, such service would be an important "feeder" for main air routes.

Hearings on the problems which arise in planning local air service were started this week.

The board wants the answer to these major questions:

1. What kinds of airplanes will be most feasible—single or multi-engined, one or two pilots, fast or slow, 10, 15 or 20 passenger capacity?

2. What kind of airports will be needed, how will they be acquired and maintained?

3. How much will the government participate in financing local service through payments for carrying mail?

4. Who should operate local services—the main line airline companies, local businesses whose interests are closely tied-in with local transportation, or small independent transport companies?

The applications on file and the board's exploratory hearing will not bring air service immediately to every sizable community in the country. The questions must be answered and something must be done with the answers.

L. Welch Pogue, CAB chairman, favors a governmental policy of support during the period of expanding air traffic to Main street. He says it would be "economically suicidal" to attempt to provide local air service with the kind of equipment now in use on trunk lines. Furthermore, most of the smaller cities do not have airports able to handle airplanes of that size.

Edward P. Warner, a member of the board and a noted aeronautical engineer, has suggested that the CAB might well permit use of single-engined planes in public transport, provided some limitations are placed on size, minimum performance and operating procedure.

That some important development in the spread of airways will come with the end of the war seems inevitable in the light of requests for certificates to operate air services, both passenger and express.

The existing airline companies have projected vast expansions of their domestic operations. Bus lines, railroads and water carriers have formally outlined ambitious programs for extending air service to virtually every community in the nation.

More than a fourth of the 370 applications on file with the CAB relate to local service for small communities. As an example of the completeness of such proposed coverage, 25 applications relate solely to New England.

A single application, proposing the use of helicopters, calls for 78 routes totaling 49,103 miles and touching 1,043 cities scattered over the country. The CAB has about 30 applications proposing the use of helicopters, although no aircraft of that type is in commercial use today.

Applications for trunk routes amount to nearly a third of the total, but carry a smaller portion of the aggregate mileage requested.

Pre-war figures probably are the strongest supporting data for predictions of great strides in short-haul air travel after the war.

persons flew between New York and city travel for 1940 show that 7,680

Official estimates of airline inter- San Francisco, a flight of 2,588 miles, and 13,750 flew between New York and Los Angeles, a 2,509-mile trip.

In that same year, however, 125,000 persons made the 214-mile flight between New York and Washington, and 111,200 passengers flew between New York and Boston, 184 miles by air.

Airline operators and prospective and business men generally have been operators as well as manufacturers studying those figures and getting them in greater detail and for more recent periods.

If there is money to be made in short-haul air traffic, a lot of people are going after it.

TWO NEGRO WOMEN TAKEN BY OFFICERS

GERMANS LAUNCH PURGE IN DENMARK

STOCKHOLM, Oct. 2.—(AP)—The Germans have launched a purge of Denmark's 6,000 Jews, they announced officially in Berlin and Copenhagen today, opening a Gestapo-storm troop reign of terror which prompted Sweden to intercede quickly tonight with an offer of haven for the victims and a warning for the Nazi oppressors.

The Swedish government announced formally that it had asked Germany to permit Danish Jews to come to Sweden, but a Swedish spokesman said there were strong rumors that the Germans already had begun to deport the Jews to Germany and Poland.

German officials announced that the Jews were being "removed from public life" in Denmark. Widespread arrests, made only after storm troop and Gestapo reinforcements had been sent in to Denmark, were begun on the night of September 30 and early yesterday morning, coinciding with the Jewish holidays.

The raids were reported to have continued through yesterday.

The Swedish minister to Berlin, the Swedish government's announcement said tonight, formally offered refuge for Danish Jews, at the same time telling Nazi officials that the purge would have what he described as "serious repercussions" in Sweden.

A foreign office spokesman in announcing the Swedish offer said he was not prepared to comment on the nature of the repercussions.

So far, he said, Berlin has failed to reply to the offer.

LAWRENCE VAUGHAN, SALESMAN, EXPIRES

Lawrence D. Vaughan, 45, well-known Monroe salesman, died Saturday afternoon at 12:15 o'clock at St. Francis sanitarium of heart trouble and complications.

Born in Monroe on May 1, 1898, Mr. Vaughan had spent his entire life here. For the past 21 years he had been connected with the Ouachita Candy company. He was a member of St. Matthew's Catholic church and the Barkdull Faulk post of the American Legion.

Mr. Vaughan is survived by his wife, the former Dollie Breard, three sons, Corporal John Henry Vaughan of the United States army; Lawrence Vaughan, Jr., of Monroe; Seaman Second Class Warren Vaughan of the United States navy; his mother, Mrs. Henry Vaughan, of Monroe; and the following brothers and sisters: Henry Vaughan, Whitaker, Alaska; Hal W. Vaughan, Boise, Idaho; J. H. Vaughan, Philadelphia, Pa.; Mrs. Lucille Humphries, Monroe; and Mrs. Lester Smith, New Orleans.

The body will be taken to the home, 602 Bres avenue, this afternoon at 3 o'clock. A short funeral service will be held at the home tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock and then the funeral cortege will move to St. Matthew's Catholic church where further services will be conducted by Father J. C. Marsh of Hodge.

Active pallbearers will be E. O. Cannon, Bernard Biedenharn, A. V. Breard, Clarence Barton, Peyton Parker and Warren Breard. All employes of the Ouachita Candy company will serve as honorary pallbearers.

Peters Funeral home is in charge of arrangements.

MRS. HERRING OF WEST MONROE DIES

Mrs. Josie May Herring, 58, wife of E. J. Herring and member of a well known West Monroe family, died yesterday afternoon in a local sanitarium.

Funeral arrangements had not been completed last night, pending word from relatives, but services will be held at the Assembly of God church in West Monroe with Rev. E. L. Tanner, pastor, officiating. Interment will take place in Hasley cemetery.

Mrs. Herring is survived by her husband; two sons, Arthur D. Herring of the United States army at Bennettsville, S. C., and Rev. O. J. Herring of League City, Tex.; two daughters, Mrs. J. D. Humphries of Monroe, and Miss Willie Herring of West Monroe; two grandchildren, Caroline Jean Herring and Harlan Humphries; three sisters, Mrs. Howard Harper, Mrs. O. G. Hattaway and Mrs. W. O. McQueen, all of Calhoun, and one brother, W. N. Smith of Calhoun.

The Herring residence is at 206 Crosley street, West Monroe. Mulhearn Funeral home has charge of arrangements.

OUR COMMUNITY PLEDGE

URGENT NOTICE TO BOY SCOUTS AND SCOUTERS

- All Boy Scouts and Scouters are urged to attend a Big Scout Rally Friday night, October 8th, at 7:30 o'clock, to be held on the Courthouse Lawn to receive instructions and all materials needed for the Pledge Campaign. Every Scout and Scouter is especially urged to be present.

- Beginning Saturday morning, October 9th, Boy Scouts of Monroe and West Monroe will ask every housewife in the Twin Cities to sign our Community Pledge.

Scouts this is our opportunity to do a big needed job in promoting the war effort—we're depending on you 100% and it's going to take every Scout and Scouter to do this job. Let nothing keep you away from the rally Friday night, October 8, 7:30 p.m., Courthouse lawn.

Signed
CHARLES B. COOK, Scout Executive

We Are Working Together to Keep Living Costs Down..

And to Share Food Fairly on the Home Front

From coast to coast patriotic citizens, consumers and retailers alike, are waging neighborhood campaigns against rising prices. They are determined to keep down the cost of living . . . to stamp out black markets in food . . . to "hold the price line" in their communities.

Your government has taken two important steps to eliminate increases in food prices and to assure everyone a fair share of food. Essential foods have been rationed. Top legal prices have been established on practically every essential food item in the family market basket. These are wartime prices for your community.

The American housewife is making it her personal war job to keep down the cost of living. Now she knows what she should pay for things! She has made the Home Front Pledge and she is dedicating herself to make it work—every day! She watches for the published list of top legal prices for her community, clips them out of her newspaper, and carries them with her when she shops. It's her responsibility to check her dealer's selling prices against the top legal prices. She knows that. And she is doing it—faithfully!

The retailer is giving his full support to this program. He is working side by side with consumers to uphold the principles of the Home Front Pledge. It is his defense again dishonest dealers. By giving ration goods only in return for ration stamps he guards himself against profiteers and black market operators. And he is able to keep his own shelves well stocked! Visible prices protect him—as well as his customers.

We are all on the firing line at home—in the fight against rising prices. It's up to every one of us to help—to protect the value of the American dollar—to preserve our present way of life—to plan for a sound economy in the future.

Let's keep faith with our fighting men by keeping our home front strong. This is one contribution you can make to the war effort, within your own community.

Team up today! Join the Home Front Pledge Army. Your community needs your support!

Watch for the Boy Scouts and Give Them a Hearty Welcome!

...uachita Parish Paid Tribute With Dollars To Their Men In Armed Forces

At the end of the third war loan drive comes a lethargy —a healthy lethargy of a job well done. Ouachita parish has again distinguished itself for going over the top. Every citizen in Ouachita parish who, even in a small way, contributed toward the success of the third war loan drive is now experiencing a glow of satisfaction.

Thanks have been generally passed around to those who were directly responsible for the success of the drive and that means, of course, that Mr. Jack Rogers received the lion's share of praise. It is a well-known fact that responsibilities gravitate to the person who can shoulder them; power flows to the man who knows how.

It took the efforts of such men as Mr. Rogers and Mr. Clarence Oakley and a host of others to really put Ouachita parish over the top. Contributing factors were the bond salesmen who worked unceasingly throughout the campaign. The primary incentive however for the purchasing of bonds was the desire to give full support to our fighting men.

The cooperation of the newspapers, radio, magazines, news reels and movies before and during the drive was practically one hundred per cent. The newspaper publicity was really colossal and that under the most difficult circumstances, a plethora of war news and a paper shortage. Often good publicity is taken for granted. A story or an article or a broadcast to be good, means concentrated work, careful checking and is done by humans, not machines. The men and women of the Fourth Estate expect and get plenty of complaints. This is one of the pillars of a free press, but being human, they flower praise when it is deserved.

Citizens of the Twin Cities certainly paid high tribute to their fighting men, many of whom have already died, when they made it possible for Ouachita parish to go over the top in the Third War Loan drive.

Miss Adelle Goode To Wed Sergeant Markey

Mr. O. Z. Goode, Lake Providence, announces the engagement and approaching marriage of his daughter, Adelle, to John Charles Markey, first sergeant, Military Police squadron, Greenville army air field, son of Mr. Hugh V. Markey, Boston, Mass. The date to be announced later.

Plans for the wedding will be completed upon the graduation, in November, of Miss Goode from King Daughters hospital, Greenville. Sergeant Markey, son of H. V. Markey, state auditor of Massachusetts, is a member of an old Boston family. He attended Boston Latin school and before entering the army was field representative for twelve years, in the New England states, for the United Drug company. Sergeant Markey has been stationed at the Greenville air base for the past two years.

Miss Goode is a graduate of the Lake Providence High school and in November will complete the course at the King's Daughters hospital, Greenville, Miss.

Mrs. Booth Honoree In Home Of Mrs. Wilson

Myriads of early fall flowers added color to the reception suite in the home of Mrs. R. A. Wilson, when she and Mrs. S. L. Smith, Mrs. Maurice Baxter, Miss Annie Laura Booth and Miss Olivia Barr entertained at Farmerville Thursday evening, between the hours of 7:30 and 10 o'clock, honoring Mrs. Billy Joe Booth, of New Orleans, a recent bride.

Receiving with the hostesses and the guest of honor were the latter's mother, Mrs. R. J. McMillin and sister, Miss Kathleen McMillin, of Jonesville; the groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joe W. Booth, and Mrs. Thomas Elliott of El Dorado.

Mrs. Charlie Stewart presided over the bride's book in which the guests registered.

The lace-draped dining table was centered with an effective arrangement of pink roses and carnations, flanked by white tapers burning in crystal candelabra.

Mrs. F. W. Murphy poured coffee from a handsome silver urn, and Miss Faye Baughman served punch. Delicious open faced sandwiches, and individual wedding cakes embossed in pink and green were placed along the board.

A large concourse of beautifully gowned guests enjoyed this charming hospitality.

Miss Tisdale Hostess To Delta Beta Sigma

Miss Louise Tisdale entertained members of Delta Beta Sigma sorority informally at the home of her parents, Dr. and Mrs. A. D. Tisdale, last week.

The sorority colors, black and gold, were employed in effective manner in the dining room where the guests gathered in conversational groups around the beautifully appointed tea table. The central decor was a pyramid of yellow chrysanthemums.

Sorority members and rushees present were: Jean Smith, Jean Hemler, Ann Brown, Gwen Walker, June Lewis, Cleta Godfrey, Joann McVay, Mary Lou Young, Jackie James, Betty Seidenspinner, Mary Anita Lennon, Rasalie Reily, Barbara Ellis, Roberta Steel, Baby Jackson, Joy Harper, Louise Tisdale, Betty Hale, Sally Foster, Gail Stewart, Patsy Snelling, Mary Alice Mickel, Lee Slagle, Ann Humphries, Joy Bernhardt, Faye Todd, Gene Smith, Alma Jean Linquist, Ruth Elaine Robinson, Betty Sue Shotwell, Jerry Biedenharn, Vettye Bernhardt, Betty Roddy, Edith McWilliams, Patsy Ziegin, Miriam Oliver, Libby Seigle, Charlottee Cooper, June Griffin.

One of the season's lovely brides-to-be is Miss Virginia Earl Kersh, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Kersh, this city, whose betrothal to Lieutenant John Richard Miller, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. John R. Miller of Brewton, Ala., is formally announced today by her parents.

Miss Billy Harper, daughter of Judge and Mrs. William Harper, was selected by Sigma Phi Omega fraternity to serve for the second year as sponsor. To the right.

Miss Sally Foster, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Foster, was recently selected as Sweetheart of Sigma Phi Omega fraternity. To the left.

Patriotic Women Give Leisure Time To Surgical Dressing Uuit Of Red Cross

We can't all drive rivets into shiny airplane wings or pour gunpowder into shells, but we can give a few hours each day to the surgical dressings for the nation's armed forces overseas.

The War department has issued a request to the Red Cross in no uncertain terms that each chapter ship its quota of surgical dressings not later than December 31.

Business women are especially urged to give some of their leisure during the evening to the unit meeting every Monday night at Red Cross headquarters with Mrs. Dora Anish, chairman.

The Monday night unit, according to the general chairman, Mrs. Joseph P. Brown, has exceeded, in the amount of work turned in, far beyond her fondest expectations. In fact, if it were not for these business women the number of surgical dressings would fall far short of the required quota. Mrs. Anish is given valuable assistance by Mrs. O. A. Walling at these Monday night sessions. Other business women who are giving generously of their time are: Ida Kaplan, Ruth Howell, Alice Naylor, Betty Renwick, Molly Michael, Irene Robinson, Marjorie Oliver, Laura Slator, Bessie Stern, Dr. Minnie Faulk, Josephine Maudlin, Olivia Robinson, Ann Ganaway, Nina Castles, Clara Hall, Sara Bres, Harriett Boyles, Marjorie Carter, Mary Mulhern, Mrs. R. Steinberg, Mrs. C. Mangat, Mrs. W. E. Meyers, Mrs. W. G. Murphy, Mrs. H. Cohen, Mrs. W. Lehmann, Alice Baur, Catherine Dandridge, Frances Flanders.

Mention should be made of the splendid efforts of a group of women, members of the Order of Eastern Star, who meet every Thursday night. This surgical dressing unit is directed by Mrs. Otta Passman, Mrs. H. O. Hartman and Mrs. Evelyn Thomas.

Those who are giving generously of their time are: Mmes. C. W. Carraway, Blanche Colvin, Clara Moore, B. L. Mulhern, J. R. Pumphrey, Leona Eshleman, Ernest Turner, Orrie White, Christine Moore, Louise Phillios, D. Hudnall, Courtland McCay, Clara Monroe, Mary Castle; Misses Mary Cornette, Mary Doyle, Mamie Rainford, Louise Tynes, Mildred Voney.

There is another branch of the Red Cross, the Dietitian's Aide corps, generally known as a war emergency corps. It came into being as the result of hospital dietitians leaving for war activities and creating shortages in dietary departments.

More than a year ago hospital staffs sought the aid of the Red Cross Canteen corps for assistance in the diet kitchens. This help was provided willingly, but the requests varied so, that it was essential to establish a national standard of supervision. At the suggestion of the American Dietetics association, the following standard course for women, working under dietitians in hospitals, was devised.

The basis of this course is the Red Cross 20-hour standard Nutrition course, consisting of an additional 25 hours of discussion and demonstration, plus 15 hours of supervised hospital practice work.

To many Canteen corps members who are doing this work now, the hospitals are sincerely grateful. It was these women who answered the call, when the call came and pitched in to do what was asked of them. They are the nucleus around which the new corps will revolve. They comprise the veteran workers of this third great Red Cross corps that is rallying to the support of the hospitals and aligning beside its sister corps, the Nurse's Aides and Gray Ladies.

As the name indicates, "The Dietitian's Aides" will work under the dietitians in hospitals and assume a variety of duties including food preparation, food service to patients, personnel and management and the keeping of records.

The time of service are those very hours when the corps member herself wants to be free—meal time—and consequently, it is a real sacrifice on the part of the women choosing this volunteer work. But it is a worthy sacrifice, that is definitely connected with the war effort.

Those who desire information regarding the Canteen corps and the Dietitian's Aide corps are requested to contact Mrs. D. L. Nicol.

Twin City Council Of P.-T. A. Plans Program

When school begins in a wartime year, it's the time for taking thought. Old loyalties are challenged anew; long-time responsibilities are seen in a clearer light. One vast united attack on the problems that now confront us is the only thing that will serve the needs of the hour. Have you enrolled in the P.-T. A. this year? Once again the Parent-Teacher association offers you an opportunity to serve your country in her time of need, through the care and protection of her future citizens; a channel of effective service toward lifting the nations' standards of physical, mental, emotional and spiritual health; a key to open the doors of equal educational opportunity to all children everywhere; a torch to discover new trails along the ever-advancing frontier of sound child development; a chance to become identified with a great national organization working to establish the better world for which free men everywhere are fighing.

Mrs. George Varino, president of the Twin Cities P.-T. A. council, announces the membership campaign is now underway and hopes each local unit will go over the top.

The October meeting of the council will be held next Thursday at which time Mr. Paul Armstrong of the Louisiana Training institute for boys will be the speaker. All P.-T. A. members and interested citizens are invited to be present and learn something about the plans for Louisiana's Training institute for boys.

Demand For Books Is Reported Increasing

Both School And Public Libraries Find Majority Turning To Literature

"A home without books is like a hearth without a fire, a cupboard without food, a purse without money, a life without love, a world without a sun, a universe without God."

A recent announcement that for the first time in the history of the world Bibles are being rationed makes one realize how important this book is in the lives of men, women and children. This does not mean that the government has rationed them, but the demand is so great the publishing houses which print Bibles are unable to fill the orders.

One reason for the immense sale of Bibles is that pious fathers and mothers, when their boys go off to join the armed forces, see that a Bible is packed with their kit. Another reason is that in these trying times people find rest for their souls in reading the Scriptures. It brings rest to the restless heart, peace to the unhappy. In it the believing heart finds comfort that the earth cannot give; the sorrowing find the eternal promise.

A home without books is indeed like a hearth without a fire but a home without a Bible is indeed desolate.

Never before has so much stress been placed upon books. The shelves in the school libraries are better stocked today than ever before and the public libraries are catering to more readers than ever before.

One of the busiest sections of the Northeast Junior college is the library where day by day the demand for books increases. The librarians are not only beseiged with requests for books but are kept busy answering pertinent questions.

Many of the books which have been stricken from all good Nazi reading lists are found in the Northeast Junior college library. For one reason or another these volumes run agrain of violent Nazi theories. So to the city square bonfires go any and all of these publications found in people's possessions.

Some of these forbidden titles which are on the shelves in the college library comprise Norman Angell, "Great Illusion"; W. H. Auden, "Poems"; Henri Barbusse, "Under Fire"; Stephen Vincent Benet "John Brown' Body"; Franz Boas, "Mind of Primitive Man"; Pearl Buck, "The Good Earth"; Eve Curie, "Madame Curie"; Albert Einstein, "The Evolution of Physics"; John Gunther, "Inside Europe"; Hans Babe, "A Thousand Shall Fall"; Ernest Hemingway, "For Whom the Bell Tolls"; Eric Knight, "This Above All"; Selma O. L. Lagerlof, "The Ring of the Lowenskolds," and Sinclair Lewis, "It Can't Happen Here."

The exhibit also includes some of the works of the great Thomas Mann; Karl Marx, Capital"; Bertrand, "Education and the Good Life"; Erich Maria Remarque's famous novels, "All Quiet on the Western Front," "The Road Back," and "The Three Comrades; "Carl Sandburg, "The People Yes"; William L. Shirer, "Berlin Diary"; John Steinbeck, "The Moon Is Down"; Evelyn Strachey, "The Coming Struggle for Power"; Sigrid Undset, "Kristin Lavrandatter"; Voltaire, "Candide"; Franz Werfel, "The Song of Bernadette."

A sidelight on Germany's forbidden books is found in the Allies' policy of stocking prison camps' libraries with the books not allowed them in their own country. While they wait and wait, yet they may learn.

Evalyne Mitchell And Bethel Bradley Wed

Mrs. William Barry Ricks Mitchell, Lake Providence, announces the marriage of her daughter, Evalyne Ruth, to Mr. Bethel Louis Bradly, Jr., son of Mrs. B. L. Bradly, Delhi.

The marriage was solemnized Friday, September 17, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Patterson, with the Rev. Hearn, pastor of the Delhi Methodist church officiating.

Mr. and Mrs. Bradly are now at home in Tallulah.

Mrs. Bradly is a graduate of the Lake Providence High school, and attended Louisiana State university, where she was a member of Chi Omega, sorority. She also attended Northeast Center, Monroe.

Mr. Bradly finished at Gulf Coast Military academy, Gulfport, Miss., attended Southwestern, Lafayette, La., where he was a member of Phi Kappa Alpha, and attended B. M. I., Monroe.

Miss Virginia Earl Kersh To Marry Lieutenant John Miller In Early Fa

Ceremony Is Planned At Santa Ana, Calif.

Prominent Member Of Monroe Younger Set To Wed Glider Pilot From Alabama

Among outstanding betrothal announcements of the early autumn is that of Miss Virginia Earl Kersh, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Kersh, to Lieutenant John Richard Miller, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. John Richard Miller of Brewton, Alabama.

The marriage will be an interesting event of early fall and will take place in Santa Ana, Calif., where the prospective bridegroom is now stationed.

Miss Kersh, one of the loveliest members of the younger set in this city, is a graduate of the University of Alabama where she was a member of Chi Omega sorority. She is a member of the Junior Charity league and the Spinster club and a member of the local chapter Delta Beta Sigma.

Lieutenant Miller is a graduate of Culver Military academy and attended the University of Virginia and the University of Alabama. He is a member of Delta Kappa Epsilon fraternity.

After receiving his glider wings in Albuquerque, N. M., Lieutenant Miller was transferred to Santa Ana, Calif., where he is now stationed.

Mrs. Coon Entertains Music Guild Members

Beautiful red radiance roses formed a decorative note in Mrs. J. Norman Coon's home when she entertained members of the Music guild. This being the first meeting, plans were discussed for the years' study on "South America."

The new officers are: president, Mrs. F. C. Holden, vice-president, Mrs. P. J. Newman; secretary, Mrs. Guy Durbin; treasurer, Mrs. R. W. Cretney; parliamentarian, Mrs. Raymond Spence; historian, Mrs. H. M. James; reporter, Mrs. B. B. Martin.

The following musical program was presented:

Vocal numbers: "Pale Moon," (Logan); "Kasmiri," (Wereforte-Finden) —Mrs. Guy Durbin.

Piano numbers: "Valse in C sharp Minor," (Chopin); "Valse Bluette," (drigo); "In A Patio," (Chenowith)—Mrs. Pat Hamm.

Mrs. Hamm, an accomplished musician is a distinct acquisition to the Music guild.

Mrs. Coon concluded the afternoon's program by reading an article from Etude magazine on "Music," by Franklin P. Adams.

Delicious refreshments were served and a social hour enjoyed by Mmes. J. L. Cheshire, R. W. Cretney, Dallas Goss, Cecil Hill, F. C. Holden, Willys Hopkins, H. M. James, Everett Lawson, B. B. Martin, Paul Newman, P. A. Poag, Raymond Spence, W. W. Watson, Guy Durbin, Pat Hamm.

Winter Plans Mapped By Sigma Phi Omegas

Members of Sigma Phi Omega fraternity are bestirring themselves—shaking off their summer lethargy preparatory to launching their winter program highlighted as customary in spite of wartime restrictions, with their traditional Christmas ball.

They recently elected sponsors for the winter season and are delighted to announce such favorites as Billy Harper, Sally Foster and Billie Brewton in the role of sponsors and sweetheart.

Billy Inabnet, president of Sigma Phi Omega, is enthusiastic over the prospects for a season of gayety even though wartime regulations will be strictly observed. He is being assisted by Tommy Fortenberry, vice-president; Doyle Parker, secretary and treasurer; Scotty Daniel, pledge master; Metris Bell, sergeant at arms.

The three annual balls sponsored by Sigma Phi Omega have become a tradition and the three seasons, spring summer and winter, are not considered complete without these eagerly anticipated social events. The spring ball honors the high school graduates and the "Farewell to Summer" ball honors the returning college students. The Christmas ball honors the students home for the holidays.

The active members of S. P. O. are: Clyde Allbritton, Kent Anderson, Bobby Bedoit, Metris Bell, Lamarr Butler, Frank Cline, Jr., Jeff Caldwell, Jack Brittain, Scotty Daniel, Sonny Ellis, Thomas Fortenberry, R. B. Hill, Billy Holstead, Willman Loviza, Ralph Morgan, Mack Morris, Dean Selig, Jr., Malcolm Steen, Guy Smith, Billy Sheppard, Hodge Simmons, Edwin Robinson, "Squire" Pickett, Billy Inabnet, C. F. Foster, "Buddy" Meek, John O'Neal, Bobby Pipes, C. F. Horton, Doyle Parker "Sonny" Williams.

Women Urged To Help In Surgical Dressings

All women who have leisure time and are not contributing in some way toward the work of the various branches of the Red Cross are urged to assist with the surgical dressing unit meeting each week at the American Legion home.

This particular unit is sorely in need of workers and unless the women respond to the urgent call the quota will fall far short.

There are a few, as is always the case, who are devoting every moment of their leisure time to this important work but the time has come when assistance is badly needed.

Mrs. Ray Rhymes is chairman of the Northside unit and Mrs. Jack Rogers and Mrs. William Mintz are the co-chairman. The supervisors and the registrars are: Mesdames Wharton Brown, Carl McHenry, Sam Smith, C. P. Gray, Thomas Hayes, M. C. DeLarot, Howard Greene, W. M. Greenwall, Louis Hullum, J. H. Trousdale, Joe Trammell, Archie Melgrem, C. C. Boardman, C. K. Dickard, K. Formes, Charlotte Stevenson, Gene Moss, Madge Davis, Evelyn Scarbrough, Barbara McLaughlin, Florence Congleton, Helen Harlow, R. L. Wood, C. K. Crandall, A. C. Ransom, S. A. Jones, Dora Anish and James Beattie.

PROMINENT CLUB WOMAN

Mrs. C. Noble Hatch was elected president of Fifth district, Louisiana Federation of Women's Clubs at the annual convention held in Monroe last March. Mrs. Hatch succeeds Mrs. Leola Nixon of Ruston and will serve until March 1946. She is a member of the Alto Cultural club.

PERSONALS

This afternoon between the hours of four and six o'clock, Miss Jane McKenzie will receive at the home of her parents, Congressman and Mrs. C. E. McKenzie complimentary to Miss Virginia Earl Kersh whose betrothal is formally announced today by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Kersh.

Interesting invitations to call at the McKenzie home October 3 were issued last week.

Mrs. Harry Russell has returned from a six weeks' visit with her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Skinner of Evanston, Ill. Mrs. Skinner was the former Miss Claud Russell, popular member of Monroe's younger set.

Mrs. James Conway Liner returned home last week from Baton Rouge where she enjoyed a visit in the home of her daughter, Mrs. Asher Whitley and Mr. Whitley. While in Baton Rouge Mrs. Liner was privileged to attend the first fall meeting of the Daughters of the American Revolution. The program featured a talk by Louisiana's famous author, Lyle Saxon.

Mr. Saxon was introduced by a close friend, Miss Essae Mae Culver, executive of the Louisiana Library commission. The author said that the forthcoming book on Louisiana folk lore—which he had edited—was good, and that he himself had no hesitancy in saying so, for it was compiled by many persons working on the WPA writer's project. It was compiled by them with only this stipulation from him: "Go into the communities and find out everything you can about the way people there live and work. And of course find the stories."

Mr. Saxon told his audience that he needed suggestions for a name for his book. Personally he favors, "Gumbo Ya Ya (Everybody Talks At Once)." However, he said, the publishers—Houghton-Mifflin company—felt that it wasn't such a good name—it sounded like a cookbook.

He explained he had heard the expression, "Gumbo Ya Ya" in Opelousas one time,. He was to be present at a cotton carnival and was staying at one of the homes there and an older woman brought his coffee to his bedside each morning. That particular morning he—and she—heard a commotion outside and he asked her what it was. She said: "Oh, just gumbo ya ya." The expression intrigued him, he said, and he asked her what it meant. She said it meant just everybody talking at once.

He said the publishers weren't keen —and neither was he—on putting "folk lore" or "folk tales" on the cover of the book, because that might indicate to the readers that this was a story for children.

"It is definitely not for children," he said with emphasis, and the audience applauded.

The fourth class in the Red Cross Nurse's Aide training course will start Monday morning at St. Francis sanitarium under the supervision of Miss Dryden, superintendent of nurses at St. Francis. All those who have signed up for this instruction are requested to be at the sanitarium promptly at 9 a. m.

Mrs. Arnold Bernstein, president of the Temple Sisterhood, wishes to remind all members of the important meetin, October 13, at which time the state president, Mrs. Norma Kaufman of New Orleans will be a guest of the Sisterhood. Her address will be one of the outstanding features of the year's program.

Mrs. Bernstein also desires to remind members of the meeting Tuesday, October 5, at which time the work in bookbinding will continue. These books, made up of interesting stories and colorful pictures clipped from magazines, have helped to entertain many a convalescent soldier at Selman field. It is difficult to express in words the value placed upon these books by the men in the armed forces.

Mr. W. R. Hammond is a patient in the St. Francis sanitarium where he is convalescing nicely from a recent appendectomy.

Mr. and Mrs. Emmett J. Foster announce the arrival of a daughter, Martha Elizabeth, September 21, at the Vaughan-Wright-Bendel clinic. The maternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Odom of Ruston, La., and the paternal grandfather is Mr. M. S. Foster of Calhoun, La.

Apprentice Seaman John E. Blanchard of Epps, La., is receiving training in the navy V-12 program at San Diego, Calif. Prior to his transfer there he attended Midshipmen's school at Columbia university, New York City.

After graduating from Northeast Junior college, he attended Louisiana State university where he received the bachelor's degree in June of this year as a journalism major. During his senior year he was a campus editor of "The Reveille," university newspaper.

First Lieutenant Charles K. Gardenier, who is an instructor in the CAA War Training service at the local college, is convalescing in the Selman field hospital from a major operation.

Corporal Russell Miles of McDill field, Florida, has just completed a fifteen-day furlough with his family and friends here in Monroe, and has returned to his post.

Mrs. James McDaniel has returned to Monroe from a four-month visit with her husband, Captain James McDaniel who was stationed at Camp White, Medford, Oregon. He has now embarked for overseas. Mrs. McDaniel will make her home with her family in Cheniere.

Mrs. Charles Gaushell and son arrive in Monroe today for a several days' visit in the home of Mrs. George Hair, before they leave for their new home in Shreveport. Mrs. Gaushell and her son have visited relatives in Baton Rouge and vicinity for the past month.

Sergeant Robert O'Donnell, son of Mrs. R. W. O'Donnell of this city, is now attending the officer's candidate school in New Orleans. He has been stationed with the United States army signal corps in Canada for the past year.

Chaplain Swope Gives Address Before Meeting

"Youth Prays For Peace," a poem by Grace Noel Crowell, was read with great depth of feeling by Miss Nelda Caldwell when she presided during the meditation period of the Business and Professional Girl's club at the Y. W. C. A.

Chaplain Bannen Y. Swope, of Selman field, was the guest speaker of the evening. Chaplain Swope spoke on "What Are We Fighting For," and said in part: "This war is not only a matching brawn against brawn, steel against steel, and ingenuity against ingenuity. It is a clash of ideas and faiths. It is a conflict of a barbarian culture with a Christian culture.

"The world, struggling under the severity of the victorian age, threw off all bonds of restraint. With no restrictions, with no inhibitions, and with the sky the limit, we were given the opportunity to try our newly grown wings of freedom. Soaring away from discipline and indoctrination, we flew to the doctrine of self-expression.

"A freedom that is inwardly directed and undisciplined leads only to disaster. Our European neighbors discovered that unbridled liberty only led to disillusionment and dispair.

"In their disillusionment, leaders rose, promising the advent of a new day.

"Before our eyes, a new Europe developed. These leaders resurrected such uncomfortable ideas as discipline and indoctrination. It was an unpleasant lesson that disclosed that personality only grows when man responds to something greater than himself. In demanding the complete obedience of the individual, the totalitarian rules secured by force a virtue which ought to have been cultivated by us through free choice.

"Against their concept of state, we place our democracy. Democracy protects the right of all men to think and to do as they please. Many maintain that true freedom is obtained only when there is an attitude of complete attachment from all human absolutes. A free man, according to this view, appreciates the values innate in all ideas and causes, but is unwilling to marry himself to any. He lives and dies spirtually childless.

"Religion, as the dominating factor of life, has fallen into disrepute. God is no longer considered the universal king, and religious obedience is no longer the central loyalty from which all other obligations stem. We permit religion to be supreme in its own domain but what that domain is, no one knows; and, therefore, religious obligations are weaker than the social interests and much weaker than the fierce claims of patriotism.

"While we scrupulously guarded against indoctrination and engaged in endless discussion viewpoints, none of which we accepted and none of which we forced any one to believe, the totalitarian systems hammered home by indoctrination that true personality, and with it true freedom, can be obtained only by commitment to some master—a great idea, a great cause, or a great person.

"Our fighting men know what they are fighting against, but what puzzles them is what are they fighting for? After the war, what then?

"Shall we return to our old way of living? A psychiatrist describes our civilization, 'our culture has bred individuals with the compulsive, selfish, defensive need to be independent.' We may win on the battlefield and lose on the spiritual battlefield unless we realize that we are interdependent.

"Democracy will have to be more than a random collection of successful men and their wives who are found in the inner circles of banks and corporations, in the best clubs, in the dominant cliques of trade unions, among the political churchmen, and the higher manipulating bosses of the government.

"The true exponents of the type of democracy that will live are found in China. When Japan invaded China, the commercial companies grabbed their bank rolls and did their best to salvage the machinery. It was of little concern to them that Chinese people were slaughtered by the thousands. As the commercial companies beat a hasty retreat, the missionaries of various churches bound up the wounds of women and children while standing stedfast against overwhelming odds, thereby earning the undying devotion of the Chinese. That is the kind of democracy foreigners respect and believe in.

"A democracy that upholds human values will live, a democracy that selfishly clings to economic values while sacrificing human values will die. The leadership of the world after the war will go to those nations who are spirtually strong."

The group welcomed Misses Ruth Poimboeuf and Evelyn Cason as new members. Guests for the evening were Mrs. Mary Ella Milford, Mrs. Doris Feigel, Misses Ella Pearl Sutton and Mary Pipes.

Brown-Brownell Wedding

Of interest to a wide circle of friends is the announcement of the marriage of Mr. Rowland L. Brown to Miss Thelma Dean Brownell, both of Columbia, La. The ceremony was performed in the home of Rev. I. L. Yeager, who officiated.

Mr. Brown is the great-grandson of the late John R. Brown, who was a successful business man in the pioneer days of Columbia, La., the "City of Roses" on the banks of the Ouachita.

Mrs. Brown is a member of a highly respected and much appreciated family of the little city of Columbia.

For some months Mr. Brown has been in the United States navy, soon to return to the service. Mrs. Brown will continue to make her home in Columbia, for perhaps the duration.

BETROTHAL ANNOUNCED

Miss Ann Montgomery, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Calvin Montgomery of Delhi, La., whose engagement and approaching marriage to William Francis Levert, son of the late Dr. and Mrs. William F. Levert of Shreveport, has just been announced.

Inspirational Meeting At Presbyterian Church

"Christian Homes—An Essential of Today" was the subject of the September inspirational meeting, held in the First Presbyterian church of Monroe, with Mrs. R. G. Stewart as leader assisted by the ladies of circle number seven.

Mrs. Stewart said in part: "Since it is in the home that the child spends most of his time, naturally it is from the parents that he receives his standard of conduct. He is born with a tendency to imitate, therefore the example which is set in the home will be the one which he will copy. Family worship is the time when children discover their parents' dependence upon God. Many times it is the attitude of the adults which makes children desire to listen and talk to the Heavenly Father.

"The family is God's idea, not man's. The ties that relate members of the family to one another are not human arrangements, they are the bonds that God created in His wisdom and sanctioned in His love. To leave a child to make his own choice as to whether he will follow Christ, without leading him first to know Christ as his personal Saviour is plain mistreatment. We are responsible for our child's immortal soul.

"Our greatest need, if we are going to be Christian in our homes, is more of the Spirit of Christ, more of the kindness, the patience and forbearance, the tolerance and the love of Christ. Children need Christian security, solidarity in the home, Christian simplicity and sincerity in living. A happy Christian family is one in which each member not just simply conforms to the ceremonies of religions but practices it in his daily living. Not each one thinking of his own welfare but of the welfare of others and in humility, service and love demonstrates they have the mind of the Master.

As Judah said of Benjamin, so mothers may say of their children, "How shall I go up to the Father, if the lad be not with me?"

Mrs. L. O. Bass gave a most interesting and comprehensive report on "The Second Year Manual for United Religious Education Advance."

Mrs. Ruth Hundley reported on "Homes that make history."

Mrs. C. E. Faulk discussed an article entitled, "The Testimony of a Christian Mother."

"How Being a Christian Does Make a Difference," was the subject assigned Mrs. Kate Morrice.

Mrs. H. L. Gregg chose for her devotional Deut. 6:4-7.

The meeting adjourned after a season of directed prayer lead by Mrs. Ruth Archibald.

Mrs. McGuire Addresses Daughters Of Revolution

Members of Fort Miro chapter Daughters of the American Revolution heard with considerable interest the things Mrs. Manning McGuire had to say in connection with the reason why the United States is fighting today.

Mrs. McGuire said in part:

"What is war? War is a social institution. It is a way of getting things, which groups of people—whether tribes or nations have followed from time immemorial. They have used war for the obvious reason that was the only way or the best way of getting what they wanted. In the sense we are now discussing it, nations with respect to one another are beyond the pall of law. They live internationally in a lawless world. Of course, the only law would be the old rule, the simple plan—he may take who has the power, and he may keep who can.

"Among the objective for "Why We Are at War" and for which we fight, there is none more vital and fundamental than the attainment of a just world where human rights are recognized and protected. The rights have been in the past generally recognized but never adequately protected as belonging to mankind. They have been left to local or national enforcement but never recognized in international law as superior to all other law. Today they are challenged by those aggressor nations who seek to subordinate them utterly to the interest of the state which recognizes no rights superior to immediate national aims.

"Here the issue is joined with those who are convinced that there can be no just peace that does not recognize human rights as essential to an orderly world. It is the emergence of this practical issue that is leading men of all nations to study how we can protect these rights in the new world that is being born amid the horrors and suffering of the present conflict. We fight to crush Axis aggressors and end the threat that we and our children become slaves to Hitler's "New Order." We fight also for a chance to build a better world—a world in which this horror that now engulfs us cannot happen again. On these two objectives the people of America are overwhelmingly united. We are also facing a constant suggestion today of a possible World war III, unless the attempt to unite America on the preferable means of achieving that objective. Four senators, two Democratics and two Republicans have introduced senate resolution 114 along that line of thought.

"There are many conflicting views as to the basic causes of modern war. The three great wars of modern times, the Napolonic wars, and World war 1 and II were not started for that reason, (economic distress of aggressor) but primarily because the aggressors in those conflicts had been bitten by the world conquest bug.

"The United Nations were united at first in resistance to aggression. Now they are united in counter-attack. The United Nations' idea was born of necessity not theory. The winning of the war, therefore, is the first purpose of the war. Secondly, we fight to establish a world in which war will not recur. The tragic history of the last twenty-five years taught us that it is no good winning a war unless, as our president has said "that war stays won." The prevention of war, rather than the cure must be the ultimate solution of this difficult problem."

Women's Part In War Effort Told To Club

Several Interesting Addresses Heard By Members Of Monroe Literary Club

"Women's Part In the War Effort," the course of study outlined by members of the Monroe Literary club for the coming year, got off to a splendid start last week when the first program of the season was presented in the home of Mrs. J. K. Blue with Mrs. P. E. Massey, co-hostess.

The business session was presided over by the president, Mrs. W. L. Moore. Mrs. R. E. Wilson opened the meeting with a prayer for guidance during these tragic times. A budget was submitted by the treasurer, Mrs. C. E. Autrey, and the members voted to contribute to the nurses' training fund which the fifth district is sponsoring. Mrs. Julius Chandler was elected secretary to fill a vacancy.

Mrs. A. D. Tisdale spoke briefly to the club, outlining special activities that clubwomen will be confronted with during the ensuing year; those notably mentioned were, "Juvenile Delinquency" and "Buy-a-Bomber Campaign." She urged all women to plan now to attend the state convention in Shreveport, November 2, as the State Federation will again be privileged to have their national president, Mrs. John L. Whitehurst, present.

Mrs. Blue introduced Mrs. W. M. Mitchell, who gave an interesting paper on Madame Chiang Kai Shek. She said in part: "The first lady of the world today is, undoubtedly Madame Chiang Kai Shek. She is a member of a remarkable family—the Soongs. Every member of this family is American educated, rich and powerful. When she returned to China after completing her American education, she began her work. Merling saw China, not as something rigid and ancient, but as a land where change must come.

"She wanted to have a hand in that change, and since she had been away ten years, she set herself to learn the Chinese language and to discover the people. She first concerned herself with the social welfare of the factory girls; then moved into a more comprehensive concern for the welfare of China, for its growth into a strong and unified Democracy.

"When Chiang Kai Shek inherited the leadership of the Chinese Republic, his wife marched with him in the parade. This was something never heard of in China before. As a relief worker she travels from village to village, doing all she can, always immaculately groomed, the picture of elegance in Chinese clothes. She is admired by everyone. The Japanese would rather get her than anyone in the world for they know she is the strongest link between China and the United States."

Mrs. R. E. Wilson, speaking the part Mrs. Harkness Love has played in the war effort, said: "The army air forces recently announced a new organization called the women's auxiliary ferrying squadron or WAFS, with a very pretty boss, Mrs. Nancy Harkness Love, student at Milton academy, Milton Mass. There, she devoted leisure time and summer vacations to learning to fly and accumulating flying time necessary for advanced licenses.

"In 1935, Mrs. Love was engaged by the bureau of air commerce as one of a group of flyers to air mark all principal cities in the United States. In 1937, she tested and demonstrated safety planes. She contributed to the development of the tri-cycle landing gear on safety planes, a gear now being used on most medium and heavy bombers. She was one of the original group of pilots who flew aircraft consigned to Britain, to the Canadian border, where they were towed across the border to comply with the neutrality act.

"She has longed for the day when the United States army would permit women to ferry military planes from factory to airfield, releasing men for the fighting fronts. Today her dream is coming true. The WAFS are to have a civil service status, with barracks in Welmington, Delaware. She and her WAFS (50 originally) are already chauffering light planes to domestic airfields, and are doing such an expert job that the generals are considering letting them pilot big bombers to war zones."

In speaking of the job being done by Mrs. Dwight Davis, national director of American Red Cross volunteer special services, Mrs. Floyd Matthews said: "Mrs. Davis, whose active connection with the Red Cross began in 1939 in the District of Columbia chapter, was named to her important post in May, 1940. Her interest in national affairs is natural inasmuch as she is the daughter of a former secretary of the navy, and wife of Dwight F. Davis, Coolidge's secretary of war and a former governor of the Philippines.

"She made two trips to England; one at the outbreak of the war in September, 1939, and the other early in 1941, where she studied the women's voluntary service organization and saw them demonstrate under fire, the tremendous national service women volunteers could perform under enemy attack. This convinced Mrs. Davis that the women of the United States must be aroused and trained to meet similar emergencies.

"In Red Cross work rooms all over the country, war relief production under her guidance, has been carried on vigorously. The Red Cross volunteer nurses' aide corps program has been strengthened for war emergency service, the Red Cross motor corps has constantly enlarged its membership and extended its training program, and the Red Cross nutrition and canteen corps volunteers in large numbers are being trained for efficient wartime service."

During the social hour, following the program, refreshments were served to: Mrs. W. M. Mitchell, Mrs. L. W. Boyce, Mrs. Floyd Matthews, Mrs. C. E. Autrey, Mrs. J. S. Heard, Mrs. S. E. Morris, Mrs. Julius Chandler, Mrs. A. B. Colmer, Mrs. J. K. Blue, Mrs. R. E. Wilson, Mrs. P. E. Massey, Mrs. W. L. Jones, Mrs. W. L. Moore and guest, Mrs. A. D. Tisdale.

Mrs. White Addresses Local Business Women

ing The Manpower Shortage And Calling All Women' Is Topic Of Talk

October, in Business and Professional Women's clubes, is the time for a general awakening. A call to arms were, with the observance of Business and Professional men's week, highlighting the month.

prelude to the week of activity the meeting last week in the me of Miss Maible Hood with Mrs. R. White, prominent federated club woman, the guest speaker.

The topic of her talk, "Solving the Manpower Shortage and Calling All Women," contained many interesting points of great value to club women. She said in part:

"As your program chairman has told ou—the topic for this evening's pro-am will be 'Solving the Manpower ortage' and 'Calling All Women.' id for this topic I have chosen as our asic thoughts an article from Fortune magazine. This article is entitled 'The Margin Now Is Womanpower' under title—'The Margin Now Is Wom-wer,' is a 1943 must; and this 1943 t' reads like this:

Over three million women must ecruited this year.' And the article on to say, 'That if they don't forward voluntarily they may to be drafted.' And, of course, are all aware of the fact that the ng of all women will in a measolve the manpower shortage.

When it was announced on Decem- 5 that Mr. Paul V. McNutt had ly been designated as 'manpower Washington commented wryly 'womanpower czar' would have a more accurate title. Mr. Mc- s paramount task will be to w several million women into the tories, most of them housewives o do not have to work and are not re they want to work.

"Forecasts show that about four illion people who have never orked before must be enlisted in the bor force in 1943. In fact it is esti-ated that another million will be ecruited by July, 1944, and as this rticle from Fortune says, they will ave to be mostly women because early all the men are already work-g or fighting. There are practically unmarried women left to draw pon now, so this leaves as the next tential source of industrial work-s, the housewives. Woman's place is most everywhere now, and the num-r of women already at work and e variety of jobs open to them show hat industry has already done a first lass job of recruitment training, and ersonnel direction. But it must do ore.

"The manpower shortage confronts with unexpected political and so-l issues. We are a kind, somewhat timental people, with strong in-ined ideas about what women ld or should not do. Many ightful citizens are seriously dis-ed over the wisdom of bringing ed women into the factories. Mr. levelt, a few months ago, was ring the necessity of a national ration of women. Mr. McNutt, on ide, has long wanted a National ice act giving the government r to direct any able-bodied citi-man or woman, to work where ded. But fears of regimentation were so strong in the public mind that these plans were abandoned, at least temporarily.

"Dr. Minnie Maffett, your National president, said in a recent article that men for years have accepted the advice of women on educational and social needs, but it is time now that they learned to seek their advice on industrial and business problems asserts Mrs. Maffett. She also said that responsibility for such an attitude rests with women themselves.

"Mrs. Maffett made this statement to the national board just recently. 'Women must have knowledge which will make their suggestions valuable, and seek opportunity for a conference with men for the benefit of both.' She says that every woman in high position must feel that she owes it to all women who are coming after her to hold the door open. Mrs. Maffett goes on to say, 'that in the Business and Professional clubs you must take your places with organizations that are concerned with postwar economic planning to make certain that in that planning, provision is made for jobs for both men and women.'

"Mrs. John L. Whitehurst, president of the General Federation of Women's clubs, recently made this statement about woman's place in the world today. She said, in speaking of representative government, 'If representative government is to be preserved, the women of America must do it.' She also added this statement, that when a society, a class, or the state takes over industries, the thing it takes over is more than these material possessions; it takes over the direction and the control and the lives and the souls of men.

"And as we think of solving this 'manpower shortage,' we know and realize that all of these plans are for one cause to hasten the victory—that we are confident that we will win. such as your national president and Mrs. Whitehurst have mentioned, so in closing I should like to read a four line poem from a current national journal that warns us of a "Camouflaged Victory." This "camouflaged victory" that the writer describes in these four lines would be the type of victory that would place us under "military control"—that, we have already heard something about.

"We talk of victory on the seven seas;
Of keeping peace by militant control.
Can nations win a white-winged peace from these,
If man has lost the mastery of his soul?"

CAUSE OF MINE DAMAGE

In a mine explosion, it is not the force of the blast that causes the most damage, but the after-damp, a mixture of gases. From 80 to 90 per cent of the deaths in mine explosions are caused by this after-damp.

MISS MELBA BARRETT

Miss Barrett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Barrett of West Monroe, is now in training at Touro infirmary, New Orleans, for United States Army nurse. She was a member of this year's graduating class of the Ouachita Parish High school.

CHAPTER V

In less time than seemed possible the human projectile shot in again, not so slender now in complete flying gear.

The two men bolted out into the night, jumped into a car and raced to the plane that waited, all warmed up, with propeller idling.

They had been too busy to talk much, but when they were well away and climbing fast Imhof asked curiously:

"What held you up?"

"Motorbike broke down. Deserted heath. Couldn't get to a phone or find a car. Terribly sorry," came the laconic explanation.

Around 3,000 feet, they broke through the ceiling of cloud into the light of a quarter moon, now sinking low in the west. The plane continued in its long climb.

On approaching 10,000 feet, Imhof was almost startled by hearing a voice in his earphones. In the long silence, he had nearly forgotten that he was not alone.

"Better connect up your oxygen pipe," said Danforth.

Presently the pilot pointed to where, through a large gap in the flooring of cloud, two shadowy masses of differing darkness met each other in a long looping line.

"The coast," Imhof heard.

In a moment more they were over the sea and the shoreline slipped underneath.

"Keep your eyes open for a bomber below," came through the intercom.

They circled, no longer climbing, but Imhof failed to see a single plane.

"There's one!" said Danforth suddenly, pointing.

"A Lancaster," the pilot identified. "She's still climbing. We'll go with her."

"Good thing for us they know we're not Nazis," said Imhof.

"They know what we're hanging 'round for," said Danforth. "All the Essex stationed bombers in their wave were informed about us. I'll signal them. Check your belt."

Imhof checked and the plane flipped over, corkscrewed through a roll, straightened out, then corkscrewed through another in the reverse direction. The Lancaster waggled her wings decorously and, greetings thus exchanged, both planes flew on, preserving a sort of unorthodox formation.

The flight proceeded uneventfully for some half an hour more. Then—

"Nazi night fighter off port bow, lower down," Danforth announced. "Hope they see him on the Lanc."

Alert and tense, Imhof watched to see what the Nazi would do. He was coming up fast.

"They see him! Look!" Danforth cried.

Imhof looked and saw the Lancaster flip over, sheer away and power-dive into a cloud below.

"Nice work," Danforth chuckled.

Instinctively, the Nazi nosed down to go after the bomber, then, realizing he had lost her, quickly nosed up again to attack the observation plane.

To Imhof's surprise, Danforth swung straight in the direction of the enemy, putting the plane into a steep climb.

The Nazi started to spiral up in steep, climbing turns that would bring him up in time to close with his quarry. Just as he swung into the third ring of the spiral and headed away at right angles to the observation plane's line of flight, Danforth acted.

"Hang on to your hat," he laughed, and put the plane into a screaming power-dive behind the Nazi's tail.

The surprised Nazi could only swerve, describing a considerable arc. Then he lined up again and plummeted in pursuit. But before he could get in range the observation plane knifed into a cloud.

Danforth marked time by flying around inside the cloud a while, then shot out into the clear. Imhof studied the sky on all sides, but saw no sign of the Nazi.

"I suppose we've lost the Lancaster for good," Imhof said regretfully.

"Oh definitely," was the unworried reply. "But we'll get on all right without her. I took a compass reading of her course immediately I spotted that Jerry."

Imhof felt somewhat uneasy. "I hope you're a good navigator," was all he said.

"Shan't need to bee," was the cheerful comeback. "If we come within 50 miles of Coblenz, we'll see it. You're forgetting the fires."

Suddenly to starboard a jagged starfish of flame sprang into being, tore a ragged fiery hole in the darkness and vanished. Immediately after a second starfish rayed out just underneath.

Ack-ack.

The plane shot upward, as if blown higher by an explosion, then fell off to one side in a sort of sideslip and dive combined.

Then, as the starfishes multiplied, began a mad, jinking progress, the plane climbing and diving, leaping and falling away, zig-zagging and weaving and twisting. The pilot was throwing her about to keep the ground gunners from taking sure aim.

After some 15 minutes of this drunken progress, he pointed to a faint patch of reddish glow ahead.

In a comparatively short time Imhof and Danforth were circling, high over Coblenz, watching the bombers going into action lower down.

'Thank Your Lucky Stars' Opens At Paramount Monda

Shown above are Alexis Smith, Charles Boyer and Joan Fontaine in a scene from the most unusual love story in years, "The Constant Nymph," which plays today and Monday at the Capitol.

Lloyd Nolan as "Michael Shane," in the 20th Century-Fox picture, "The Man Who Wouldn't Die," with Marjorie Weaver, plays at the Joy theater Friday and Saturday.

'CHAMELEON' STREETS

Whenever they come to an important intersection, most streets in Mexican cities change their names. Often one street may change its name six or seven times.

Alexis Smith, shown above with a bevy of beautiful girls, is just one of the many stars seen in the all-star extravaganza, "Thank Your Lucky Stars," which opens a five-day engagement at the Paramount Monday. The gay concoction has 12 tunes and 148 girls to sing them and to dance the numbers which make this a big package of eye and ear entertainment.

A great adventure and romance in the history of the seven seas is told in "Souls at Sea," starring Gary Cooper, Frances Dee and George Raft. This sea story plays at the Capitol Tuesday and Wednesday.

There's pulchritude-plus in "Dangerous Blondes," a tale that starts with a "crime-quiz" and ends with a "battle of the sexes." Shown above are some of the "blondes" who are co-starred with Edmund Lowe. This picture plays today only at the Paramount.

Many Stars In Cast Of Big Musical

Bogart, Cantor, Davis, Flynn, Garfield And Many Others Featured

WITH more than 600 persons singing and dancing to twelve original tunes for "Thank Your Lucky Stars," which starts its engagement at the Paramount theater Monday, Warner Bros.' biggest musical production for size and shape bids fair to be a record-breaker in many departments.

The film will have twelve stars and a similar number of featured players. The big revue will employ the talents of the following players in specialties and production numbers:

Humphrey Bogart, Eddie Cantor, Bette Davis, Olivia de Havilland, Errol Flynn, John Garfield, Joan Leslie, Ida Lupino, Dennis Morgan, Ann Sheridan, Dinah Shore, Alexis Smith, George Tobias, Jack Carson, Alan Hale, Edward Everett Horton, S. Z. Sakall, Hattie McDaniel, Spike Jones and his City Slickers, Ruth Donnely, Don Wilson, Willie Best, Henry Armetta and Joyce Reynolds.

The cast not only includes these stars but the producer and director of the picture themselves, Mark Hellinger and David Butler. For overflowing good measure there are the Ten Lucky Stars, a picked team of dancers; the Dormitory Dolls, another group of ten; Les Estrellitas, ten Latin American beauties; not to mention anything about the 148 showgirls who adorn the various production numbers.

Twelve original tunes were written by Arthur ("Dancing in the Dark") Schwartz and Frank ("Praise the Lord and Pass the Ammunition") Loesser. 425 individual costumes were designed for the feminine members of the cast. Forty-nine complete settings were constructed for the picture.

Variety and novelty—stars doing the unexpected—characterize the majority of the sequences. Bette Davis sings and does a jitterbug routine. Errol Flynn sings and dances—in Cockney. John Garfield's routine includes singing. Ida Lupino, Olivia de Havilland and George Tobias sing and dance boogie-woogie. Ann Sheridan teaches a class in love, singing her "lecture." Jack Carson and Alan Hale team up in a song and dance routine. Dinah Shore, famous as a singer, dances in one of her numbers. Alexis Smith, who won her star rating as a dramatic actress, does a specialty dance. Hattie McDaniel and Willie Best sing and dance in an all-negro number. Dennis Morgan does the expected—singing. Joan Leslie, who duets with him in two tunes adds some unexpected impersonations of James Cagney, Ida Lupino and of Errol Flynn and "Gentleman Jim" Corbett.

'Constant Nymph' At Capitol

Charles Boyer And Joan Fontaine Co-Starred In New Attraction

WHEN the elements of writing, production, direction and acting are as judiciously mixed as they have been in the new Warner Bros. film, "The Constant Nymph," the results should be something special in the way of screen entertainment.

The picture, which opens at the Capitol theater today, boasts an impressive array of stars and featured players. The cast leads off brilliantly with Charles Boyer and Joan Fontaine in the starring roles, names that spell romantic magic.

Mr. Boyer's outstanding performances in such pictures as "Algiers," "Mayerling" and "Hold Back the Dawn" are classic examples. As for Miss Fontaine, one need only mention "Rebecca" and "Suspicion," for which she won the Academy Award, to evoke performances of unsurpassed dramatic strength.

This intensely dramatic film offers her an opportunity to play the part of a shy, frightened young woman, the kind she has done so well in the aforementioned pictures. This time her problem is centered around her unrequited love for Charles Boyer, a composer who falls in love with and marries Alexis Smith. Joan's portrayal of Tessa Sanger should bring her new plaudits.

"The Constant Nymph" should give Charles Boyer's talent as a romantic actor full play. He plays the part of Lewis Dodd, a composer, a man of great complexity, appearing as two different men to the women who love him.

Joan Fontaine is one of a musician's unruly family, raised in a remote Austrian chalet. In her eyes Lewis is a person innocently free of the restrictions of conventions as she is—almost a part of herself—essential to her life. But another woman intervenes. To Florence (Alexis Smith), a glamorous figure in London society, Lewis man is a new emotional experience, dangerously unpredictable. She marries him, attempts to make his genius an ornament for her drawing room and admits defeat when it is too late.

ORD CROWDS EEN FOR TILTS

York Favored Over Cards Because Of Pitching, Home Run Punch

By Judson Bailey

NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—(AP)—Another World Series, a sports spectacle which instead of losing its luster in wartime seems to have gained new glamour, will open in mammoth Yankee stadium Tuesday with the St. Louis Cardinals again facing the New York Yankees.

Record crowds of more than 70,000 fans are in prospect for one or all of the three games to be played in New York and there is no doubt that sportsman's park, seating 33,000 will be sold out when the series moves to St. Louis next Sunday.

The fact that the regular baseball season closing tomorrow has been generally dull, with dwindling attendance and nothing resembling a sustained pennant race in either major league, makes the interest displayed in the 1943 diamond classic all the more remarkable.

All box and reserved seats at the stadium have been sold for approximately two weeks and scalpers have been reported reaping as high as $50 for a strip of tickets to three games priced originally at $16.50. However, $5.50 grandstand and bleacher tickets will be on sale on the day of each game.

Although the stadium has never been sold out for a series tussle, indications are that last year's all-time attendance record turnout of 69,902 on Sunday, October 4, will be topped.

The Yankees have been established favorites to beat the Cardinals, although last year when the same situation existed the Redbirds won the world championship with four straight victories after losing the opening installment.

The reason for the odds favoring New York apparently is two-fold—the apparent pitching superiority which the Yankees hold for a short series and their dreaded home run punch which in eight years has brought them seven American league pennants and five world championships.

U. S. C. 7; CALIFORNIA 0

BERKELEY, Calif., Oct. 2.—(AP)—For a few fleeting minutes late in the first period, Southern California's T-formation baffled the University of California Bears today, enabling the highly-favored Trojans to knock off a 7-0 football victory before 35,000 fans.

The Trojans put their scoring plays together swiftly with only seconds left in the opening period. They took the ball on California's 26 after the Bears had helped put themselves into a hole with some weak punts that traveled out of bounds.

LIONS INVADE JENNINGS FOR GRID CONTEST FRIDAY NIGHT

Expect Bulldogs To Be Tough; Consider Night Game In West Monroe

The Ouachita Lions journey to Jennings this week-end for a clash with the tough Jennings Bulldogs Friday night, and meanwhile a movement is underway here to play the locals' next home game—with Fair Park of Shreveport on October 29—under lights at night in West Monroe.

Local football teams were forbidden the use of lights for night games last season and the rule by the city has continued in effect this year.

However, interested supporters of the O. P. H. S. team are already working on the possibility of getting the necessary lighting in West Monroe and transfering the game, Coach George Riser said last night. Whether or not the plans will materialize remains to be seen.

The Ouachita Valley fair grounds and the Brown Paper Mill ball park are among the sites reported being considered.

There are many soldiers and fans here who have not been able to see the afternoon games, Riser said, and a night game would give practically all an opportunity to attend.

This week's game pits the inexperienced Lions against Jennings' great all-state back, Bill Broussard, who led the state in scoring last year, and scored five touchdowns in two games against the Lions in 1942. Watson, regular wingback last year, is also back in the Bulldog lineup and will be just more trouble for the locals. Jennings also is reported to have another big line—almost as big as '42's forwards, who averaged 190 pounds.

Ouachita came out of the Ruston game in fair condition. Ray Clark, end converted into tailback, will have to develop a much faster start to improve the offensive, and work more on passing. LaFeze Dean and Frank Cline could get more action with a little more speed, and Flem McMillan, while showing plenty drive from the fullback post, was poor as a blocker. Tommy Moncrief also needs to improve his speed, but he has worked hard and apparently his improvement is just a matter of continued practice.

In the line the Lions were blocking much better against Ruston. The downfield blocking was better, too, but the players still must stick to their blocks just a little longer and a little more viciousness would help considerably. J. E. Tripp, Marvin Moon, Tom Miller and Gene Roswell looked particularly improved.

From now on the Lions will be sailing against Class AA talent and the going will be rougher as they progress.

CARDINALS TAKE 104TH CONTEST

Ernie White Unimpressive In Starting Role; Reds, Braves Win

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 3. — (AP) — The haughty St. Louis Cardinals, defending world's champions, swept to their 104th victory of the season today by defeating the listless, last place New York Giants, 6 to 3, with Southpaw Ernie White making an unimpressive bid for a starting role in the World's Series.

The 27-year-old White, pitching his second complete game since last May 13, when stricken with bursitis, was clouted for eight hits, including three doubles, and appeared to be tiring at the finish. He had two shaky innings, issuing two bases on balls in the first and throwing two wild pitches in the eighth in which the Giants scored twice on three hits.

"You can judge his performance for yourselves," Manager Billy Southworth said.

The Cards gave White perfect support and got him off to a two-run lead in the first inning on a base on balls and three singles. The Cards scored again in the fourth and fifth and put the result beyond doubt in the eighth when First Baseman Ray Sanders clouted his eleventh homer of the season, scoring Danny Litwhiler ahead of him.

Southworth decided to keep his star right fielder, Stan Musial, batting leader of the National league, out of the game to avoid the danger of a possible serious injury to his weakened left ankle. He was replaced by the veteran Frank Demaree.

Musial twisted his ankle in the fourth inning of yesterday's game and collapsed into the dust of the batter's box after starting a sprint to first. The injury is not serious. Musial participated in batting practice today and wanted to play to keep intact his record of playing in all of the Cardinals' 153 games to date. He is the only Cardinal who has done so.

Southworth counselled against Musial's desire. He did, however, allow him to pinch hit for Demaree in the seventh so he could officially appear in his 153rd game. He rolled a feeble grounder to second. Thereafter, Debs Garms went into right field, replacing Demaree.

"If Musial got hurt out there, we'd be criticized," Southworth explained. "We'd never hear the last of it. It's important to have him rest."

Southworth, still mum on his pitching choice for the opening game, was cheered by the news that Murray Dickson, a relief pitcher for the Cards, had been granted a ten-day furlough at Ft. Leavenworth, Kans., to enable

BERTELLI STARS IN IRISH VICTORY

Hurls Passes For Four Notre Dame Scores In 55-13 Win Over Tech

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Oct. 2.—(AP)—Angelo Bertelli was on the pitching end of four Notre Dame touchdowns and Fullback Jim Mello personally scored three as the Irish trampled Georgia Tech today, 55 to 13, for their second devastating triumph of the young football season.

Bertelli, whose transfer to the Harris island marine base after the October 30 game with navy gives him only three more games to go for Notre Dame, threw 20 yards to Julius Rykovich for a second-period score and was on the flinging end of the three that the Irish forced across on the hapless Engineers in the third period.

This was the order in which those third quarter touchdowns came, as 30,000 stood and cheered:

1—Bertelli's 11-yard touchdown pass to Creighton Miller completed a 72-yard Irish drive.

2—Bertelli lateralled to Mello who rambled 39 yards to score.

3—Bertelli launched a 31-yard forward to Reserve End Raymond Huffel in the end zone.

In addition, the Notre Dame slinger booted six of Notre Dame's seven successful placement tries for extra points.

Bertelli tried only seven passes all afternoon, and six were completed for a gain of 100 yards.

The Engineers matched Notre Dame touchdown for touchdown through the first period and half of the second, and were behind only 14 to 13 at that point. But that was when Bertelli really began to explode, and Tech never stood a chance after that.

The first four Irish touchdowns, as well as the seventh, came after marches of more than 60 yards. Miller snagged the first on a six-yard run climaxing an 84-yard drive. Bertelli's throw to Rykovich capped a 64-yard hike, and Mello made the first of his three scores on a three-yard plunge after the Irish had driven 70 yards near the end of the first half.

Tech made both of its touchdowns in the second period, one on a short line buck by Ed Schwarfschwerdt and the other on a 26-yard pass from Frank Broyles to Mickey Logan, so the score read Notre Dame 21, Tech 13, at the intermission.

Soon after the third period began, the Irish trooped 72 yards and Bertelli snapped a touchdown pass to Miller from the 11. A few minutes later a short Tech punt gave Notre Dame the ball on the Engineers' 39 and the first play was a lateral from Bertelli to Mello, who scampered for a score.

The No. 6 Irish touchdown was a dream, a lofty, true pass of 31 yards from Bertelli right into the arms of Kuffel waiting in the end zone.

No. 7 was scored by Bob Hanlon on a three yard run after the Irish had blazed from their 17. Reserve Tackle George Sullivan made the eighth, falling on the ball in the end zone after it was knocked from the hands of Eddie Prokop, Tech's splendid passer, as he tried to throw from inside his own 10-yard line.

VIRGINIA 6; W. VIRGINIA 0

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Oct. 2.—(AP)—Virginia's Cavaliers, mustering their strength through three scoreless periods, produced the punch in the last two minutes of play today to topple West Virginia university, 6-0, in their fourth meeting in 45 years.

Halfback Charlie Sackett carried the ball on the only scoring play of what was in most respects a rather listless exhibition before 10,000 fans gathered at Laidley field to see what the Mountaineers could do against an opponent they hadn't met since 1922.

YANKEES SWEEP DOUBLE HEADER

Defeat Browns Twice For 14th Sweep Of A Twin Bill This Season

NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—(AP)—The Champion Yankees set a new American league record today by taking both ends of a double header from the St. Louis Browns, 5 to 1 and 7 to 6, for their 14th sweep of a twin bill this season.

Not only did the Bronx Bombers win their 96th and 97th games of the season, but they reached their objective of 100 homers for the campaign when Bud Metheny clouted a round-tripper in the opener and Joe Gordon dittoed in the nightcap.

Steve Sundra was within one out of his 16th victory in the second game when George Stirnweiss trippled home Oscar Grimes with the tying run. Metheny then singled Stirnweiss home to win the game and give Rookie Tom Byrne his second victory of the season.

SOUTHWESTERN 14; TEXAS 7

AUSTIN, Tex., Oct. 2.—(AP)—Southwestern university trounced a young but stubborn University of Texas football team, 14-7, today, with both its touchdowns scored by former Texas stars before 15,000 spectators.

Three former Baylor university bulwarks, Bo Robinson and R. L. Cooper and S. S. (Bubo) Earnett ganged up with an array of war-shifted Longhorns, led by Jackie Field, Ken Matthews and Spot Collins, to score touchdowns in the second and fourth period.

18 CANDIDATES OUT FOR CLARKS FOOTBALL SQUAD

CLARKS, La., Oct. 2.—(Special)—Coach Paul Jones has a squad of 18 candidates for the Clarks High school football team on hand and says prospects for a fair team are good.

The Lumberjacks' schedule, due to the absence of Class B teams which have dropped football for the remainder of the war, has not been completed. The 'Jacks are anxious to fill dates up to November 1 and all teams in this area desiring games are urged to communicate with E. C. Dupuy, Clarks High school principal.

Candidates reporting to Coach Jones were Billy Ray Reitzell, John Louis Greene, Bearl Howell, Pearce Oglethorpe, Houston Douglas, Donals Lee Richmond, Harold Story, Laverne Dunn, Lavelle Holland, Paul Abrams, J. A. Weaver, Milton Reeves, Billy McDermott, Charles Patton, Fred Jackson, Jewel Estess, Thomas Lee Parker and Johnny Eason.

TAG TEAM MATCH ON MAT PROGRAM

Swenson, Ballard, Olsen And Blakely Are Matched On Wednesday Card

A tag team match has been billed by Promoter Gus Kallio for his Wednesday night wrestling show at the Monroe arena.

Tangling in the tag show will be Jack Swenson of Kalamazoo, "Barefoot" Ballard of Knoxville, Al Olsen of Kansas City, and a newcomer to the southern circuit, Gene Blakely, who is currently wrestling in Tennessee.

Promoter Kallio said the team of Blakely and Swenson would be matched against Ballard and Olsen in the main event of the evening which would have a 90-minute time limit, two falls to win.

Two one-fall matches, featuring the main event talent, will start the show. Blakely will meet Ballard or Swenson in one of the openers, and Swenson will meet the member of the opposing team that Blakely fails to warmup against.

But the fans will have the say about who wrestles who in the two one-fall scraps and the decision will be made at the ringside Wednesday, Promoter Kallio said.

Blakely's talents are of an unknown quality in this area, but Swenson, Ballard and Olsen are well-known tusslers. Ballard, whose real name is Otis Allen, army sergeant stationed at Flora, Miss., and jui jitsu expert, is a rough tussler who can be a villain or wrestle clean. "Sailor" Olsen, the tattooed man, has always been a villain in these parts and can be depended on to make things mighty rough for on to make things might rough for Blakely and Swenson.

PELS TO PLAY FIRST GAME MONDAY NIGHT

The Louisiana Training institute Pelicans, who quit football last year, return to the gridiron tomorrow night when they invade Jonesboro for a clash with the Jonesboro-Hodge "B" team, Coach Kermit Youngblood announced last night. It will be the first game of the season for the Pels, who have been training for the past month.

L. T. I. also has another game on tap for this week, meeting the Clarks High school Lumberjacks in their first Class B conference game in Clarks on Friday night.

Coach Youngblood has a light squad and can't boast a single player with any previous experience, although David Anderson, Marion DeJean, Hoyt Cribbs and Fred Williams have shown decided talent, and Anderson, a back, and Williams, a lineman, may develop into top performers with a little more training.

The L. T. I. squad is as follows: Ends, Turner, Brumfield, Aldrich, Schexneider and Bavineaux; tackles, Baham, Bressman, Clinton, Creel and Pleasant; guards, Williams, G. Rogers, Chasisson and Winborne; centers, Hazlemyer, Gaines and Eschette; and backs, Anderson, DeJean, Cribbs, Farmer, D. Rogers, Hebert, McDonald and Wallace.

Hot Off The Gridiron

PENN 41; YALE 7

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 2.—(AP)—Pennsylvania's football team, manned largely by navy trainees, sailed through Yale like a PT boat through a blue millpond today to whip the Elis for the sixth successive year, 41 to 7.

Carrying out the promise they showed in their opener against Princeton last week, the Penn boys rolled up a total of 442 yards by rushing and passing against Yale's 312 yards and scored at least once in every period. It was the first time Yale ever had lost six games in a row to any opponent.

It was John Small, 16-year-old fullback, who crashed through for the first Penn touchdown to climax an 82-yard march in the first period. Joe Kane scored twice in the second quarter, plunging over once after Joe Michaels, a V-12 trainee, had passed 29 yards to Walter Bubien and then going 16 yards on a reverse from Michaels.

The Red and Blue added two more tallies early in the third quarter before Hoopes got loose to set up the only touchdown. Michaels went over at the end of a long march and then, some three minutes later, he passed to Bob Odell, who sprinted 25 yards to the goal.

Yale's score was almost entirely Hoopes' doing. He carried the ball to the eight yard mark. Stopped there, Tim flipped a pass to John Carey for six yards, and Scussel made the final yard.

Penn's final touchdown in the last quarter resulted from Michaels' passing as he completed one toss to Ken Pickens for 17 yards, then pitched another over the goal line to Theo Tussing.

DUKE 42; N. C. PRE-FLIGHT 0

DURHAM, N. C., Oct. 2.—(AP)—Duke university's potent Blue Devils celebrated Navy day today by handing the North Carolina navy pre-flight school football team a 42-0 shellacking before 6,179 spectators.

It was the same old story, with the Blue Devils scoring almost at will. They started in the first quarter when Lloyd Blount snagged a 42-yard pass from high-stepping Buddy Luper and stepped across the goal line, less than two minutes after the start of the game.

"Spook" Murphy ended a 34-yard march with a 13-yard sprint for the second score; two more were added in the second on Luper's own 22-yard gallop over the last marker and on Murphy's pass from the pre-flight 22 to Perry in the end zone.

No more scoring was done—except for each team having touchdown jaunts, one an 80-yarder by Blount, called back—until the final period. Murphy loosed a 36-yard aerial to Gordon Carver, who sprinted the remaining 20 yards for one, and Bobby Rute bucked and ran a total of 46 yards for the other, going over from the two.

IOWA PRE-FLIGHT 33; IOWA STATE 13

AMES, Ia., Oct. 2.—(AP)—Frank Maznicki, 175-pound halfback who played less than half the game, scored four touchdowns and kicked extra points today to lead the Iowa naval pre-flight Seahawks to a rousing 33-to-13 triumph over Iowa State college.

Maznicki scored two of his touchdowns on runs of 76 and 47 yards and, in addition, reeled off sizeable gains to help his undefeated mates pave the way for other scores.

OHIO STATE 27; MISSOURI 6

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 2.—(AP)—A week ago they said he just wouldn't do, that he couldn't go in big time ball. But today he scored three touchdowns, played a great defensive game, and covered ground like an antelope as Ohio State defeated Missouri, 27 to 6, before 27,525 fans.

We speak of Ernie Parks, huge 17-year-old negro freshman from Canton, O., who is right halfback of the Buckeye "kid corps" and the state's 100 and 220-yard high school sprint champion.

Parks carried the ball 27 times for a total of 207 yards, and scored his trio of touchdowns on jaunts of 10, 25 and 61 yards, with hardly a hand being laid on him, but he had plenty of help. Sensational Dean Sensanbaugher, another freshman, gained 152 yards in 23 attempts, the two ball-toting yearlings accounting for 357 of Ohio's 451 gross yards. Sensanbuagher's touchdown run was for 23 yards.

PRINCETON 26; COLUMBIA 7

NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—(AP)—Princeton pushed aside a young Columbia line that was no stronger than rationed coffee today and romped to a 26 to 7 verdict over the Lions.

The Tigers, drubbed handsomely by Pennsylvania last week, unleashed a pair of G-men, Bernard Gallagher and Pete Glick, and it didn't take them more than a few moments to discover what made the Lions tick—or fail to tick.

Glick burst through the center of the ineffective Columbia line in the very first period on a 71-yard hike for a touchdown, and before the second session was more than a minute old he was back once more. This time he had but 17 yards to go.

The third Princeton marker went to Bill Miller, it coming in the third quarter at the end of a 47-yard march, but the final score, midway in the last period, was chalked up by Dave Marshall who went 86 yards in one play.

Columbia offered a line that had only one veteran, Captain Tom Rock, at end. The Lion forwards offered little interference for their own backs and absolutely none to the Tiger ball carriers, who gathered in 345 yards on the ground during the afternoon.

Columbia annexed its lone marker in the first period. A Lion punt was carried out to the 1-yard line but a Tiger clipping penalty put the ball in play on the two.

Hoping to catch the Columbians asleep on the first play, Marshall attempted to whip a pass to Wayne Harding. Instead, Ed Politi grabbed it on the seven and thundered to the two before being spilled. Ed Arden needed only one blast to score with Al Miller coming off the bench to convert.

ARMY 42; COLGATE 0

WEST POINT, N. Y., Oct. 2.—(AP)—Army's offensive-minded football team completely crushed a well-rated Colgate eleven here today, 42 to 0, dominating the play so completely that Andy Kerr's Red Raiders never were even a vague threat and their most effective offense was the faculty of pouncing on numerous Army fumbles.

Eight thousand fans saw the cadets, using a dazzling assortment of swift laterals, long and short forward passes, short bites into the line, and long end sweeps, score once in each of the first two periods, three times in the third, and once again in the fourth.

If any of the array of Army backs was outstanding, it was the fleet plebe, Glenn Davis, who bit off huge chunks of ground around the ends or off the tackles while most of the other cadet backs were nibbling out yardage with shorter thrusts.

Davis accounted for the first score with a 48-yard gallop around his right end soon after the first period opened, and George Troxell accounted for the second marker with a plunge from the three yard line early in the second quarter.

MICHIGAN 21; NORTHWESTERN 7

EVANSTON, Ill., Oct. 2.—(AP)—Michigan, gearing its running attack to Fullback Bill Daley's average of 8.2 yards in 26 tries with the ball, scored two touchdowns quickly in the first quarter today and added another in a final-period struggle against a revived Northwestern team to crash through for a 21-7 Western conference football victory. A crowd of 40,000 saw the game.

Daley, the ex-Minnesota line-buster, and Elroy Hirsch, one of the Midwest's leading ground-gainers at Wisconsin last year, carried most of the assault of Michigan's murderers' row. Daley weaved 37 yards for a touchdown on the first play of the game, then rocketed 64 yards into the end zone in the last period, just 30 seconds after Otto Graham had lunged 12 yards behind Herman Frickey's excellent blocking for Northwestern's only tally.

Crazy-Legs Hirsch accounted for the Wolverines' other touchdown in the opening canto after Daley had set it up with successive drives of 20 and 7 yards. Merv Pregulman added the three extra points.

In piling up 226 rushing yards to Northwestern's 111, Michigan's powermen now have accumulated 753 yards on the ground against three opponents. Daley's average has been 7.6 in 52 carries.

INDIANA 52; WABASH 0

BLOOMINGTON, Ind., Oct. 2.—(AP)—Ed Schienbein and Jim Allerdice, two Indianapolis boys, led the Indiana attack that downed Wabash, 52 to 0, in Memorial stadium today.

It was the third straight week that the Hoosier eleven, mostly freshmen, had met a team of navy cadets, and it was their first victory against the "navy."

GREAT LAKES 40; PITT 0

GREAT LAKES, Ill., Oct. 2.—(AP)—The University of Pittsburgh's "T" model Panthers took another shellacking today, this one 40 to 0 from Great Lakes' blue jackets, before a capacity crowd of 22,000 naval training recruits. It was Great Lakes third win in four tries.

Steve Lach, former Duke university and Chicago Cardinal professional star, sent the sailors ahead in the early moments of the game when he dashed 13 yards for one touchdown and followed a minute later with a 65-yard touchdown sprint.

MEMPHIS ELEVEN CRUSHES TULANE

Filchock Leads Navy Team In 41-To-7 Triumph Over Green Greenies

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 2.—(AP)—The powerful Blues of Memphis naval air tech, paced by Frank "Chuck" Filchock's touchdown passing, smothered a green Tulane team, 41 to 7, here today before 25,000 fans.

Filchock, former Indiana university and Washington Redskin fullback, tossed four touchdown passes and ripped the Tulane line to bits with his power smashes.

Tulane's fumbles gave Coach Denny Myers' navy boys two scoring chances early in the first period, but Filchock waited until the game was nine minutes old to toss a six-pointer to Halfback Tony Carroza, formerly of Mississippi Southern. He threw another first quarter touchdown pass to Earl Graham, one-time Louisiana State star.

The navy boys scored almost at will after breaking the ice, and after each touchdown a couple of twin kids, Bobby and Robby Smith of Texas, came into the game and added the extra point, Robby holding and Bobby doing the kicking. The twins got five out of six attempts.

The Green Wave got their only touchdown of the afternoon in the second quarter with Billy Jones, a Louisiana State freshman last year, scoring around end after a drive of 31 yards. Tulane recovered a N. A. T. T. C. fumble on the 31 to set up the touchdown.

Filchock's tossing brought the third Memphis touchdown in the second quarter, a 46-yard aerial play to Halfback Harold Miles from Washington university doing the job.

And just to add variety, Earl Graham turned in the most sensational play of the game by whipping around end for a 53-yard touchdown trip.

The naval team ended their scoring in the third quarter with two more touchdowns, Charley Timmons of Clemson fame, plunging through center from the seven-yard line after a drive of 58 yards, and Filchock hitting End Joe Smith with a perfect pitch in the end zone after an 80-yard march.

Buddy Gatewood, former Baylor center, played well in the Tulane line, but the Greenie forward wall was no match for the big Memphis team. Jones, who scored the Tulane touchdown and added the point from placement, and Blocking Back Ben Elender were best of the Green Wave backs.

The navy eleven rolled up 409 yards on rushing and passing plays to 144 for Tulane. The navy completed 16 of 25 passes attempted for 236 yards. Tulane completed 4 of 20 passes for 76 yards. Navy led in first downs, 13 to 10.

COLLEGE OF PACIFIC 19; U. C. L. A. 7

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 2.—(AP)—U. C. L. A., Pacific Coast conference champion in 1942, suffered its second straight beating today as Amos Alonzo Stagg's College of the Pacific registered a 19-to-7 victory before a crowd of 20,000.

Stagg's boys outplayed the Bruins most of the way but missed several scoring chances, and they had to capitalize on U. C. L. A. mistakes for the winning margin.

V. M. I. 13; DAVIDSON 0

LEXINGTON, Va., Oct. 2.—(AP)—Virginia Military institute's hard-working football team of 17-year-olds overcame a tendency to fumble in the first half to play a more polished game after the intermission and down Davidson's equally young Wildcats, 13-0, here today.

VAN BUREN STA... IN TIGER VICTO...

Improved Bengal Line Bo... Up Owls' Ace, Smothers... Passing Attack

BATON ROUGE, La., Oct. 2.—(AP)—Louisiana State—mostly Halfback Steve Van Buren—rolled over Rice institute, 20-7, before 22,000 fans tonight, as an improved Tiger line bottled up the Texans' star back, Bucky Sheffield, and broke up the visitors' aerials.

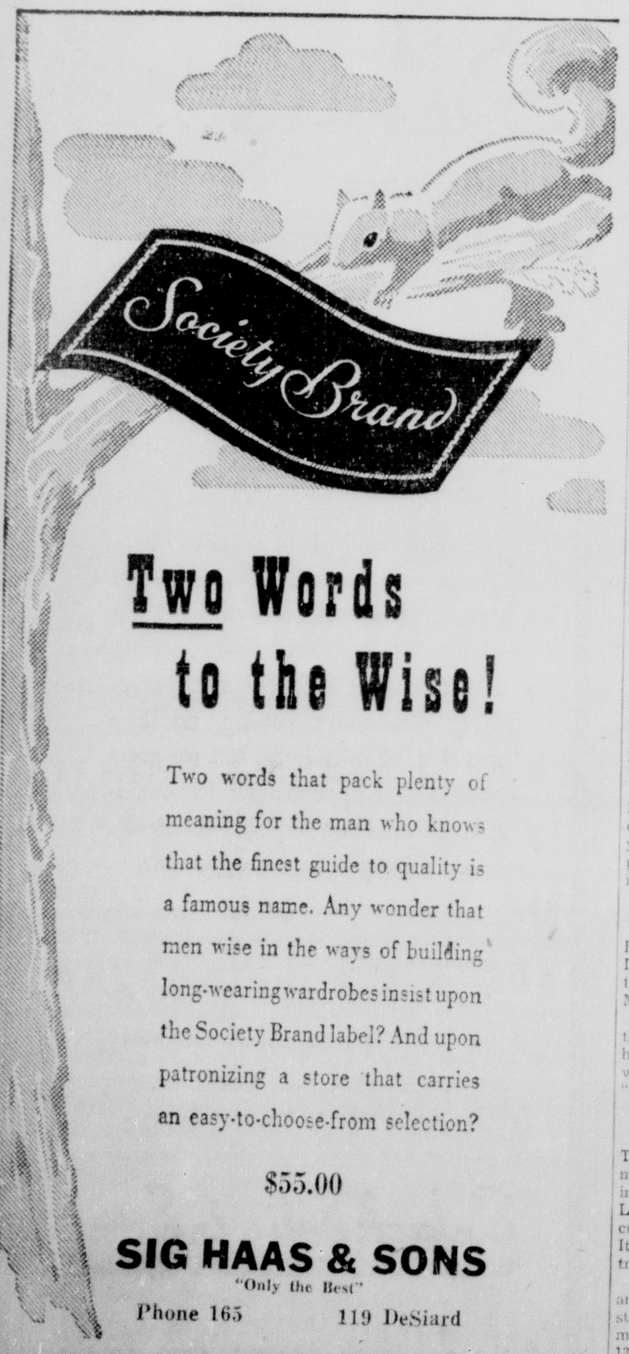

With both his line and backfield mates opening the way, Van Buren, 200-pound sprinter from New Orleans, netted 113 yards in 19 tries, while the same teammates held Sheffield, another fast big boy, to a net of 35 yards in 22 trips.

Bucky's net yardage was cut considerably, however, by losses when unable to find a pass receiver.

Griffith, Knight and Schroll shone in the Bengal ground gaining, with 39 and 22-yard net total gains, respectively.

Rice drew first blood, on a [illegible] period march from its own 25-yard line after a defensive kick from Van Buren. Mills, Scruggs and Sheffield carried three times to L. S. U.'s 1, where Sheffield's pass to Rayzor...

illiam D. Hassett, a White House etary, announced that because of time curtailment on travel attend- e at the November 27 game will be limited to military academy personnel and "bona-fide" residents within a 10-mile radius of the southeastern New York village.

The announcement made the forthcoming game strictly an army affair with the 2,496 cadets and their instructors at the academy on the preferred list of spectators. While the Point's Michie stadium has a seating capacity of about 30,000, only about 12,000 in addition to the cadets are expected to be able to attend.

Not even the midshipmen will be allowed to see the classic, which evens up matters for last year when the game was held in Annapolis, Md., before home town spectators.

TIGERS BEAT NATS

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2.—(AP)—The Detroit Tigers walloped the Washington Senators, 12 to 5, tonight, with every Tiger hitting safely on the offerings of Bobo Newsom and Jim Mertz, who relieved Newsom in the fifth.

The Tigers jumped into a three-run lead in the first inning and were never headed. Virgil Trucks went the route for the Tigers, fanning 11 Senators.

George Case, speedy Senator outfielder, grabbed the league's base stealing lead again by pilfering two bases, putting him two up on Wally Moses.

MARYLAND 13; WAKE FOREST 7

COLLEGE PARK, Md., Oct. 2.—(AP)—A little 17-year-old Maryland substitute, Halfback Dick Tushak from St. Catherine's high, Detroit, grabbed a short pass in the final 10 seconds of play today and galloped 75 yards to defeat the favored Wake Forest Deacons, 13 to 7.

The more-experienced Deacons had thrust four times deep in Maryland territory in the last half, but each time the Old Liners stood firm to protect a 7-7 deadlock.

Finally with the seconds ticking away and Maryland penalized to its 11 for an offside, Quarterback Joe Makar flipped the ball to Tushak on the 25 and he took off for the sidelines. Fullback Russell Perry, who had been the Deacon power house all afternoon, almost forced Tushak out of bounds on the Wake Forest 40, but a quick side step kept the ball in play and the speedy halfback rambled along safely for the rest of the distance.

CINCINNATI, Oct. 2.—(AP)—The Cincinnati Reds kept Brooklyn from clinching third place in the National league today by scoring three runs in the eighth inning to beat the Dodgers, 3 to 1. The Dodgers now must win their last game of the season against the Reds tomorrow, otherwise they may be ousted from third by the Pittsburgh Pirates.

BRAVES BEAT CUBS

CHICAGO, Oct. 2.—(AP)—The Chicago Cubs' six-game winning streak, done with the aid of sprightly rookies recently imported, struck a snag today in the person of the Veteran Al Javery. The big right-hander limited the Cubs to three scattered hits while the Boston Braves scampered off with a 2-to-1 victory in one hour and 36 minutes.

Javery's workmanship was such that only one Cub reached third, and that due to an error, while only two got as far as second, one of them on a double by Billy Schuster in the second inning. It was Javery's eighteenth victory of the season against 16 defeats.

MINNESOTA 34; NEBRASKA 9

MINNEAPOLIS, Oct. 2.—(AP)—Minnesota's varsity and subs neared a point-a-minute pace against a green Nebraska football team here today, scoring at will to trounce the Big Six visitors, 34 to 9.

Three times during the first 15 minutes and 10 seconds of play, the Gopher regulars got possession of the ball, and held the pigskin until the final Cornhusker stripe had been crossed.

Then the seconds went in, and it was the same thing all over as the reserve marched to two more touchdowns before the intermission.

GRAYSON'S SCOREBOARD

By Harry Grayson

(NEA Service Sports Editor)

NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—There is keen competition for appointments to the United States Naval and Military academies these days.

Offhand, one would suspect that would aid football there, but in reality it means the shutting off of some good material. That would be the case even if it did not put a new premium on academic grades.

The war may not necessarily account for the upsurge in football at Annapolis and West Point, but obviously it is doing neither any harm.

The service schools are now the only institutions in the country adhering to the three-year rule. Dave Barksdale, for example, the midshipmen's first-string blocking back of 1942, is still in Crabtown, but ineligible because he previously served two years at North Carolina.

Captain Billick Whelchel should worry, however, when he can land reinforcements like the giant Dick Whitmire and Bob Jenkins of Alabama. Whitmire was the most formidable tackle in the south last fall, Jenkins the Tide's Sugar Bowl fullback.

Practically an entire team of highly-geared transfers has reported to Coach Whelchel in the past fortnight.

The Middies deployed five teams and the first string performed only 13 minutes in crushing the North Carolina Pre-Flight Cloudbusters—officers and all—31-0.

It's difficult to see where all the Navy players are going to play unless Athletic Director Whelchel books another schedule.

But Athletic Director Whelchel will do no such thing.

He'll give Coach Whelchel full speed ahead and let him concentrate on the one at hand.

The Navy just isn't losing any decisions these days.

So far the Army-Navy extravaganza, Nov. 27, is booked for Michie stadium, West Point. . . . You can't tell schools that joined the Navy the services don't cooperate. . . . The Navy and the Marine corps filled many a gap left by army draftees. . . . Even Coach Whelchel admits Navy and Army should sport the strongest college teams in 1944. . . . Holdover material. . . . Plebe Glenn Davis already is being called Army's slickest end-runner since Red Cagle. . . . The T calling for quick opening plays was generally dropped years ago because coaches claimed they did not have time to properly drill it. . . . Now Major Red Blaik of Army and other coaches contend the T, even the modern version, is simpler to teach than the single wing, easier to learn. . . Time marches on, or perhaps it's the teaching. . . . Come to think of it, it could be the kids.

HORSEPLAY HURTS WAR PLANT WORK

Does More Real Damage To Production Than Sinister Spy

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2.—(AP)—It's not the sinister spy who is doing real damage to the war effort, says J. Edgar Hoover, it's the practical joker who likes "aggravated horseplay" at his war job.

Such playing around, the chief of the Federal Bureau of Investigation reported today, is costing "substantial sums every day in material destruction and wasted manpower."

He listed some examples:

Jamming of electrical controls and similar acts of damage in a Congerville, Ill., plant resulted in loss of about 1,000 manhours of labor. An F. B. I. inquiry showed a workman was angry with associates because they had hidden his hammer on several occasions.

A steel plant employe at Dacatur, Alabama, delayed work when he playfully opened oxygen tank valves on several occasions and at another time turned his torch on the leg of a fellow workman "just for fun."

"A sabotage mystery" at Waltham, Mass., was solved when the F. B. I. learned that employes were in the habit of throwing metal objects at each other and that pieces of wire fell into the gears of three important machines which were out of production until repaired.

Elsewhere workers were burned by mustard oil or by hot welding rods and lighted cigarettes placed in pockets by "fun-lovers."

While the F. B. I. has investigated 11,524 cases of reported sabotage since January, 1940, less than ten per cent showed any evidence of crime. Some 485 persons have been convicted under federal sabotage, train wrecking and similar statutes."

CHECKER TOURNEY TO BE HELD TODAY

With their moves illustrated on what is probably the biggest checker board ever used in north Louisiana, the two best checker players in this section will pit their skill for the north Louisiana open championship, beginning at 8 o'clock tonight. The title match will be held in the enlisted men's service club at Selman field.

Players to take part in the final round will be determined in a round-robin tournament to be held today at the West Monroe city hall auditorium, beginning at 10 a.m. It is expected that about 20 players will compete for a chance to enter the title match at Selman field.

The tournament is open to all comers, regardless of where they live. Anyone wishing to enter may do so by appearing at the West Monroe city hall at 10 a.m. today.

VAN BUREN STARS

the Bengal 7 was allowed for interference. Scruggs and Sheffield pushed a foot at a time, the latter crossing the pay stripe.

Van Buren evened the score as the second quarter opened, plunging over from the nine-yard line after Griffith and Knight had fought their way there from their own 40.

The second Tiger score was mostly Van Buren's own, in the third quarter, after the Bengals recovered an Owl fumble on the L. S. U. 40. Van Buren took the ball on his own 45, started a circle around the Owl left end, cut back, sprinted 56 yards to cross the goal standing up. He kicked the point.

The third quarter ended with L. S. U. holding the ball on the Rice nine-yard stripe, after Griffith and Knight had alternated from their own 40. Corgan carried to the four and Knight scored on the next play. Van Buren's kick was blocked for the first time this season.

The remainder the last period was a see-saw, with Rice unsuccessfully taking to the air.

The starting lineups:

L. S. U.	Pos.	Rice
Webb	LE	Rayzor
Hunt	LT	Crutchfield
Janneck	LG	Zelsman
Claunch	C	Kilgore
Polozola	RG	Nichols
Hartley	RT	Malmberg
McClelland	RE	Isacks
Barney	QB	Lawrence
Van Buren	LH	Sheffield
Nagata	RH	Mills
Griffith	FB	Scruggs

Score by quarters:

Rice	7	0	0	0—7
L. S. U.	0	7	7	6—20

Rice scoring: Touchdown—Sheffield. Point after touchdown, Harris (placement).

L. S. U. scoring: Touchdowns—Van Buren (2), Knight. Point after touchdown, Van Buren (2).

SPORTS ROUNDUP

By Hugh Fullerton, Jr.

NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—(AP)—Jack McAuliffe, the first American to fight for the world lightweight title, was a Long Island Irishman. . . . Bobby Ruffin, who'll get a chance for the crown if he whips Beau Jack Monday, also is a Long Island Irishman. . . . Any other resemblance is not only coincidental but practically invisible. . . . When the demand for $100 war bonds outstripped the supply of clubhouse seats for the races at Belmont today, officials hit upon the solution of moving the iron fence which for a generation or so has separated the clubhouse aristocrats from the ordinary grandstand customers who have to buy only $25. Bonds to see the Futurity. . . . Simple, isn't it?—And for once we don't blame them. . . . When the Yanks were playing before a record low of 771 cash customers at the stadium Thursday, more than 23,000 visited Belmont and contributed to the first week-day two million dollar handle on record.

Afterthought

When Charlie Grimm's signature on that 25-year contract to manage the Milwaukee Brewers still was damp, Prexy Bill Veeck had a sudden thought. . . . "Charlie," he remarked, "We'll have to have your social security number on this contract. Let's see, you're 45 now. . . . 25 years: that means you'll be 70 when this contract runs out."

Just Too Nervous

Before last Saturday's Yale-Coast Guard game, Coach Howie Odell of the Elis was too worried about the game to sit still. . . . He decided a little golf might soothe his nerves, went to the New Haven Country club, entered a tournament that was in progress and shot a one-under-par 71 to lead the field.

Service Department

Secretary Jack Bauers of the Virginia boxing and wrestling commission is enthusiastic about a booklet prepared by Lieutenant R. M. Cushing to teach Camp Lee soldiers how to box. It's illustrated with photos of Corporal Billy Conn and Sergeant Hank Nowak, the baseballer. . . . Specialist Charlie Ketchuck, who was Jersey Jones' heavyweight "champion" a couple of years ago, has reported for Mal Stevens's Sampson, N. Y., naval training station football team. He plays center.

Today's Guest Star

Jack Smith, New York Daily News: "Right now all this pointless discussion about Leo Durocher may well serve to take the minds of Dodger fans away from the club's failure to finish second, or possibly even third.

Miami sports moguls have erected lights in the Orange bowl stadium and are trying to adjust them to meet dimout specifications so they can try night football. . . . Tom Lockhart, proxy of the Eastern not-so-amateur hockey team, is starting a hockey "school" in Brooklyn in hopes of developing some home-bred talent. . . . And Jake Podoloff wants to enter a New Haven team in the same league if he can locate enough players among the war workers. . . . Due to the paper shortage, Sports Editor Bill Barrett of the Beckley, W. Va., Raleigh Register not only has dropped major league box scores but has cut his own daily output to a few paragraphs. . . . Which seems to give a fresh point to the title of his column—"Grin and Beat-It."

DEBATE WHETHER TO PUT OFF OPENING OF SEASON

CHICAGO, Oct. 2.—(AP)—Whether Louisiana duck hunting season will open November 2, or be held off for 15 days was still being considered here today by United States fish and wild life service.

"We are reluctant to make any changes in regulations that involve only one state," said Albert M. Day, assistant director of the service, "it takes the time of so many important people."

Fish and wild life service received a request from chairman of Louisiana's conservation committee to move the opening date of duck season to November 17 on grounds that some men would start working as guides when they ought to be harvesting rice and cane crops.

Day said "storms of protests" against such a change rolled in from many of Louisiana's duck hunters. To make the change, he explained, the matter "must go to the secretary of interior. It goes through the budget bureau, then to the secretary of state. It also has to go to federal archives bureau and finally to the president himself for signature.

"Then it comes back to federal register for publication," Day said.

World's Latest Market News

NEW YORK STOCKS

NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—(AP)—It was another of those selective markets today, so far as stock buyers were concerned, and leaders generally shifted over a slightly uneven terrain.

Scant importance was attached to price changes generally inasmuch as dealings were exceptionally slack throughout. Transfers for the two hours of around 250,000 shares were among the smallest for the year to date.

Bonds were narrow and major commodities a shade lower.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Oct. 2.—(AP)—Belief that government efforts to get corn off farms may result in an improved feed grain situation brought selling into all grains today, oats meeting the most pressure. Oats were off a cent at times while wheat and rye were down frantically.

Purchases of corn on a two-arrive basis have been fairly large during recent sessions and a private estimate of improvement in crop prospects during September, with production forecast as close to 300,000,000 bushels, was a further restraint on buying.

At the close wheat was down 3-8 to 3-4, December $1.50 7-8 to 3-4, May $1.51 3-8 to 1-2, oats were off 7-8 to 1 cent, December 76 to 76 1-8, and rye was 3-4 to 1 cent lower, December $1.08 3-8.

AVERAGE COTTON PRICE

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 2.—(AP)—The average price of middling 15-16ths inch cotton today at ten designated southern spot markets was 35 cents a bale lower at 20.42 cents a pound; average for the past 30 market days 20.45; middling 7-8 inch average 19.40.

SPOT COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 2.—(AP)—Spot cotton closed steady 25 cents a bale lower. Sales 6,243. Low middling 16.20; middling 20.20; good middling 20.65. Receipts 2,345. Stock 168,568.

New York

NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—(AP)—Liquidation of October contracts and increased hedge selling brought a lower trend in cotton futures today. Local week-end liquidation added to pressure while demand was confined mainly to routine trade price fixing.

Futures closed (old contracts) 25 to 40 cents a bale lower.

EVEN GREEN HANDS CAN SLAP A JAP!

Are you in a non-deferrable industry?

The War Manpower Commission has urged that all men not now engaged in essential industry transfer to war jobs. To build the planes—the ships—the materials of war—an army of men and women are desperately needed on America's home front.

HIGGINS Aircraft of New Orleans has opened PAID training classes in SHREVEPORT. Men and women will be paid while they learn—aircraft sheet metal work—aircraft riveting, aircraft machine shop work and aircraft final assembly.

When the short training course is finished trainees will be immediately placed in HIGGINS' New Orleans plants for in-plant training.

Get in this war and earn while you learn. Go immediately to:

ASTP TESTS TO BE GIVEN HERE

November 9 Set As Date For Examinations Nation Wide

The second qualifying test for the army specialized training program and the navy college program V-12 which will be given throughout the country Tuesday, November 9, will be administered at Northeast Junior college, A. L. Tatum, test supervisor, announced Saturday.

A pamphlet containing an admission-identification form may be obtained at the college. This form, properly filled out will admit to the test students between the ages of 17 and 21 inclusive who are recent high school graduates or who will be graduated by March 1, 1944. Intent to take the test should be made known immediately to Mr. Tatum in order that the necessary test supplies may be ordered.

The same examination will be taken by both army and navy candidates. The test is designed to discover the aptitude and general knowledge required for the program of college training, and all qualified students are urged to take the examination. At the time of the test each candidate may state a choice of service preference, but taking the test does not obligate the candidate to enlist in the service.

Both the army specialized training program and the navy college program enable students to continue academic training at government expense following induction into the armed services. Successful completion of the prescribed courses may, following further officer training, lead to a commission in the army or navy.

Those selected by the army will, after further screening and basic military training, be sent to college. Students chosen for the navy program, after selection by the office of naval officer procurement, will be detailed directly to college. Students who attend college under either program will be under military discipline on active duty in uniform with pay. All expenses, including tuition, food, housing, books and uniforms will be paid by the army or navy.

Mr. Tatum may be reached by calling the college or interviewing him in his office in the administration building.

PROMOTED

Major David Pace, above, was recently promoted from captain to major, according to word received from his parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Pace, of West Monroe. Major Pace, who formerly was a star athlete at Ouachita Parish High school and Tulane university, is stationed somewhere in India. His wife, a graduate of Sophie Newcomb college in New Orleans, advised Mr. and Mrs. Pace of Major Pace's promotion.

CIRCUMFERENCE OF EGG 7 INCHES

Mrs. E. V. Cole's White Leghorn hens are declared by her to lay bigger eggs than most hens. To attest this fact she brought to the Morning World office Saturday, an egg that measured seven inches around. She stated that her husband could hardly believe that such an egg could be found in the Cole henhouse, but his wife quickly convinced him. It is believed to possess a double, perhaps a triple yolk.

The Coles live at 3301 Webster street, Monroe.

SCHOOL CHILDREN TO BE PROTECTED

Monroe Safety Patrol Will Give Assistance In Guarding Lives

This school year the school children of Monroe will be afforded strong protection at hazardous corners by members of the newly organized Monroe school safety patrol, whose white Sam Browne belts are a signal to children and to motorists to be cautious.

Friday night, October 1, the installation ceremony of the Monroe school safety patrol was held at the Central Grammar school, at which time each patrol member was presented with a white Sam Browne belt, badge, and raincoat. Sergeant J. M. Busby, head of the traffic department of the Monroe police department, officiated at the ceremony. Mr. R. D. Farr, clerk of the Ouachita parish court, gave oath of office to the patrol members, and Ted Meares, manager of the Louisiana Automobile association, gave an explanatory talk on the origin, function, and effectiveness of school safety patrols. Other speakers included Mr. E. N. Thompson, president of the Monroe Kiwanis club, and Mr. Joseph E. Johnson of the Johnson studio, one of the originators of the Monroe junior police patrol, which was organized in 1935.

The new Monroe school safety patrol program will replace the junior police patrol, and will be standardized with school safety patrols which are functioning in 5,000 cities throughout America. The total number of safety patrolmen at the present time is 325,000, who protect the lives of over 3,000,000 children daily on their way to and from school.

The function of the school safety patrol is to instruct, direct and control the members of the student body in crossing the streets at or near schools. Patrol members are selected for leadership and reliability. Each patrol consists of a captain, lieutenant and patrolman, and is supervised and instructed by a school faculty member.

Mr. Meares pointed out that since the first school safety patrol was organized in 1921, the fatality rate among children of the 5-14 age group, as a result of traffic accidents has decreased one-third, while among every other age group the rate has more than doubled.

Sergeant Busby urged that all motorists cooperate 100 per cent with patrol members in order to safeguard the lives of Monroe school children, and to help make the safety patrol more effective.

The Monroe safety patrol is being co-sponsored by the Louisiana Automobile association, a branch of the American Automobile association, and the Monroe Kiwanis club, who are working in close cooperation with the Monroe police department. These two civic organizations furnished all of the equipment for the patrol members, and will assist Sergeant Busby in maintaining the effectiveness of the patrol.

The work of the school safety patrol is of inestimable value to Monroe, and aside from the value of the patrols in saving lives and preventing injuries to their schoolmates, the training offered creates a new sense of responsibility and leadership among members. The friendly relationship existing between patrol members and police officers in conducive to better citizenship.

Mayor H. H. Benoit and Chief B. L. Brantley are cooperating 100 per cent in this safety patrol program, and are urging all motorists to cooperate fully in slowing down in school areas, watching for school safety patrol members and giving children an opportunity to cross safely at corners.

After stealing $1,000 from a safe in Cairo, Egypt, an absent-minded burglar forgot his tool chest, bearing his name and address.

War Girl Of The Week

MARY ELIZABETH TURNBOUGH

Mary Elizabeth Turnbough is the daughter of Mrs. W. F. Turnbough, 4119 DeSiard road, Monroe.

She is a native Mississippian, born in Brookhaven, and received her grammar and high school education in that city. Mary Elizabeth's outstanding personality and enthusiasm fitted her for the role of cheer leader and she served in this capacity during her last three years in high school.

After her graduation from high school in May, 1940, she attended the Copiah-Lincoln Junior college, Wesson, Mississippi.

In May, 1941, she moved with her mother and brother to Monroe. After her brother joined the navy she felt that she would like to contribute to the war effort. On September 23, 1942, she began work with the air service command, 78th Sub-Depot, Selman field, where she is employed in the stock record section of the department of supply. The work in her unit deals with incoming and outgoing stock and Mary Elizabeth also serves as relief teletype operator.

The Turnbough family is well represented in war work. One of Mary Elizabeth's brothers, William A. Turnbough, is employed as junior instructor, aircraft electrical instruments, in the post school, Brookley field, Ala. Her other brother is Robert E. Turnbough, motor machinist's mate, 2nd class, United States navy.

JUNIOR COLLEGE SEEN AS NEED

President Hodges Says Still More Are To Be Required

President Campbell B. Hodges of Louisiana State university expressed his belief that more junior colleges are needed throughout the state in a recent radio speech. He said that new junior colleges would probably increase rather than lower the enrollment at senior colleges already established in the area as was the case with Louisiana Tech, Ruston, when a junior college was established at Monroe.

"Our two junior colleges at Lake Charles and Monroe render splendid service to high school graduates in those sections of the state by placing two years of college work within the reach of those not able to go away to colleges," the president said. "Other sections of the state are interested in the establishment of L. S. U. junior colleges. We hope that we can soon give those sections this educational service."

At present there is no pressure from other Louisiana cities for the establishment of junior colleges, but L. S. U. will probably have to cope with that question when the war is over, President Hodges concluded.

SOIL CONSERVING OFFICER SOUGHT

Listing optional subjects for forestry, range conservation, soil conservation (farm planning) and soil surveying, C. E. Thornhill, local civil service secretary has received notice of an open competitive examination for the position of junior soil conservationist for employment with the department of agriculture throughout Texas and Louisiana.

"Salaries for these positions range from $1,440 to $1,800 per annum plus overtime," Mr. Thornhill said.

Applicants for junior forester must have 20 semester hours in range management or plant ecology, or a combination of these subjects: junior soil conservationist (farm planning) must have 20 semester hours of agriculture, forestry, horticulture, animal husbandry, soils or botany and a farm background; and junior soil surveyor must have one fundamental general course in soils.

Interested persons not engaged in war work of equal skill, may secure application blanks from any first or second class post office.

MOTHER PLANS ON HOME FOR KIDDIES

Who will help an attractive, experienced young mother who seeks, if demand exists, to establish a home for small children whose parents are engaged in commercial or defense industries and who thus are in need of the services that a suitable home can offer their kiddies while dad and mother work?

A personable, motherly little woman, visited the Morning World Saturday. She has a little kiddie of her own, and being a widow she is obliged to either accept a position in some business house or, as she prefers, to establish a home where mothers can have their little boys and girls boarded and know that every motherly care and attention will be provided them.

In many other cities, in these war days, there are such homes for small children and they are performing a distinct service in freeing mothers who are aiding in war work when their services are so greatly needed.

This young woman is cultured, she possesses an innate love for children and is well-informed as to th... cial requirements. She is the... woman to whom children are... tively attracted, and in wh... mothers can safely entrust t... children.

C. OF C. PLANS POSTWAR STUDY

Twelve Conferences Will Be Held During Month Of November

A series of 12 conferences to consider post-war adjustments will be conducted by the Chamber of Commerce during the month of November, according to an announcement made Friday by the chamber president, Sam Smith.

Purpose of the conferences will be to analyze the basic problems which will undoubtedly face the community of Monroe in the post-war period, he said. These conferences will be preceded by a general meeting of the more than 500 chamber members where detailed explanations of the conferences will be outlined.

Following these 12 meetings, then, another gathering will take place in which chamber members will consider which of the recommendations resulting from the conferences will be adopted, Mr. Smith stated. In this way, he went on, every member of Monroe's Chamber of Commerce will make a contribution to the post-war period for the community.

"Why plan for peace in the middle of war?" was Mr. Smith's pertinent question. His answer—"Certainly our first responsibility is to win the war, but in the process of fighting war we must lay our plans for the period of time after the war. To accomplish this aim is not a one-man job, but will require the best thoughts of the best thinking people in our community."

The conference series will probably be held over a three-week period in November, he said. Decisions on the following general topics will be considered: highways, agriculture, aviation, public works, industrial development, private construction, traffic and trains, trade extension, national policy, natural resources, navigation and education.

An effort is being made, President Smith announced, to secure a speaker of national prominence to address the first meeting of the post-war readjustment conferences. Purpose of the meeting is to thoroughly familiarize Chamber of Commerce members with the need for considering today problems which will face the community tomorrow, Mr. Smith pointed out.

"In the maelstrom of evolution in the post-war era, some cities will die and new ones will be born; some cities will recede and others will grow. What about the Twin Cities?" was Sam Smith's question.

He continued: "We thinking citizens of Monroe and West Monroe must gird ourselves with a careful study and understanding of our problems. We must stand ready with a tangible, yet flexible, plan for our community when that evolution comes."

NEGRO IS MISSING FROM ARMY CAMP

Report of the disappearance of a negro, 22-year-old Lynn Roberts, from Camp Livingston near Alexandria some time after 7 o'clock Friday night has been made to Monroe police by the provost marshal of the camp.

The man is very light-complexioned and can easily pass for a white man, according to information received. He is described as being 5 feet 6 inches tall and weighs 154 pounds. Hair and eyes are brown.

His army serial number is 32680502, it was further reported.

MEAT CANNING WILL BE SHOWN

Public Demonstration To Be Held In West Monroe, Tuesday

Mrs. Jewel L. McQuiller, Ouachita parish home demonstration agent, has arranged for a public beef canning and cutting demonstration at the agricultural building, Tuesday at 9:30 a.m.

Miss Estelle Fournet, food preservation specialist, and R. M. Crown, assistant livestock specialist, will be in charge of the demonstration.

Mrs. McQuiller, in a letter to nutrition and food preservation leaders stated: "As you already know there will be a great number of beef animals slaughtered this fall and a great many hogs killed to be cured, and since meat is such a vital and important food. We need to have this put up in such a way that we will not have any spoilage, or at least reduce it to a minimum, therefore, I have arranged for a beef canning and cutting demonstration on Tuesday.

"Please tell everyone interested in seeing the latest in cutting and canning meat to be sure to attend this meeting Tuesday.

"You can either bring your lunch or plan to get it up town as we will not have time to serve lunch as is usually customary at leader training meetings."

YOU ARE TO BE CONGRATULATED, MRS. MAYOR, NOT ONLY ON YOUR CAPTURING OF THE SINISTER MRS. PRUNEFACE BUT ALSO ON THE MIRACULOUS RESTORATION OF YOUR HEALTH.

YOU SEE, CHIEF BRANDON, WHEN I ACCIDENTLY PASSED HER ROOM IN MY WHEEL CHAIR AND SAW HER WITHOUT HER DISGUISE, I KNEW WHO SHE WAS

I CONFRONTED HER AS SHE WAS LEAVING THE KITCHEN SHE DREW A GUN OUT OF HER BAGS — BUT I SHOT FIRST.

INCIDENTALLY, CHIEF, THAT'S THE PEARL-HANDLED MEMENTO THE BOYS PRESENTED ME WITH WHEN I HAD YOUR JOB TWENTY-TWO YEARS AGO.

IS THAT RIGHT?

AND AT HEADQUARTERS

NICE WORK YOU AND TRACY DID ON THAT MRS. PRUNEFACE CASE, PATTON

THANKS, RYAN.

WHERE IS TRACY? I WANTED TO CHECK WITH HIM ON THAT BLACK MARKET CASE

OH, HE'LL BE HERE SOON. HE WENT UP TO SEE A DOCTOR — SEEMS HE'S DEVELOPED A BAD HEADACHE.

I WAS DIRECTED TO THE DOCTOR NEXT DOOR, BUT HE'S NOT IN — AND UNDOUBTEDLY YOU CAN HELP ME.

AH, HA, HA — GLAD TO DO IT, SIR.

HA, HA! WON'T YOU SIT DOWN? HA, HA, H'M.

I'VE NEVER BEEN SICK A DAY IN MY LIFE, DOCTOR — BUT STARTING LAST WEDNESDAY, I DEVELOPED THIS PERSISTENT HEADACHE

HA, HA, YOU DON'T LOOK SICK — HA, HA — BUT WE NEVER KNOW — HA, HA. WE ALL HAVE OUR UPS AND DOWNS, MR —

TRACY IS THE NAME. UH-ULP-UH-H-

HA, HA! I'VE GOT JUST THE THING THAT WILL FIX YOU UP — AH, HA
